The Rights of Property
A Dangerous Fever
Mellon's Birthday
The Big World on Cash
—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

BY ORDER of Federal Judge Hough, 253 Ohio families of striking coal miners will be evicted from their miserable shacks on May 1. The weather should be fairly warm by then.

The judge in the case did his duty, probably could not have ruled otherwise. The houses belong to the mine owners, and if they want to fight women and children, as well as the working men, that is their right.

Some of them probably will go to hell later in case the fundamentalists are right about future plans, but that will not help the miners' families now.

A hundred times within three years this column has warned the public against selling stocks short and against stock gambling. It has been shown that real values are not understood by many, nor do they understand the change in American conditions since the war.

Billions in cash were poured into circulation. Wages were doubled. Men buy stocks, luxuries and speculate with surplus cash.

The great buying power is now the millions of little people, owners of what economists call the "social surplus." That surplus, amounting to at least ten billions a year, ten times one thousand million dollars, the people of all classes TAKE IN over and above what they need to live. They are investing each year ten new billions that they did not have before the war. Every five years that equals the fifty billions that the war cost us. Every year it equals the amount we lent to Europe.

Some of the billions go into motors, new, better houses, radio, talking machines, electric washers and sweepers, better living conditions of a hundred kinds.

And some of it, very wisely, is invested in good American securities, on a sound INVESTMENT BASIS, not on a speculative basis.

But, HERE IS THE DANGER, constantly growing more acute. Millions have got the stock gambling fever. And many that are counting "paper profits" will be bankrupt when the dust settles.

Secretary Mellon, in honor of his birthday, took two working hours off, stopping work at 4, instead of 6 p. m., according to the New York Times.

Of Mr. Mellon, past 70, some admirers say, "what a pity he is too old for the presidency."

Why too old? If he is young enough to run the financial affairs of this Nation, he is not too old to be President. Are sound judgment and long experience of no consequence? Is there no difference in men's staying and thinking powers?

This writer has seen Gladstone nearly 80, making his fight for home rule, in the House of Commons at 3 o'clock in the morning, full of fire and energy. Nobody suggested that he was too old to lead his party.

Are we inferior in stamina to the British? Must we admit that American men fade away in their prime, like savage women, prematurely married, old at thirty?

A young gentleman bought for $340,000 a stock exchange seat that his father once bough for $5000. In both cases, a bargain. If you have brains a stock exchange seat is a gold mine. Some brokers lack brains and don't know enough to let the fools gamble, while they collect commissions.

Partners in big brokerage houses must solemnly promise not to gamble. That ought to warn the lamb. It won't.

ENDS FIRST LEG IN HOP TO ERIN

Baldonnel Airdrome, Ire., March 26—The German plane Bremen, piloted by Capt. Herman Koehl, arrived here at 4:30 this afternoon from Berlin on the first leg of a transatlantic flight.

It is understood he will wait here for favorable weather reports from the ocean before taking off for America.

Capt. Koehl's companions were Baron von Huenefeld and Arthur Spindler, a mechanic.

General Motors Up to $197 as Hupp Goes to $60.50

New York, March 26 (AP)—Common stock of the General Motors Corporation leaped into the lead of the upward movement on the stock market again today, selling at a new high record of $197, a gain of $9.

Du Pont, which has large General Motors holdings, leaped $9. Hupp Motors sold at $60.50, a gain of $6.50 a share.

An over-the-week-end accumulation of buying orders poured into the market, and many blocks ranging from 1000 to 20,000 were purchased. Several investment railroads gained $1 a share or more. Pennsylvania sold into new high territory.

TRIAL DIVORCE PROVES FAILURE; REUNITED BY DECREE OF COURT

While the world anxiously awaits the outcome of recent "trial" marriages, a Cambridge couple today made history in Middlesex Probate Court by admitting that they have just gone through a "trial" divorce—and it did not prove successful.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Grove, the couple who pioneered in the trial divorce field, left the Cambridge court today with their divorce decree of October last vacated and eager to reenter upon their marital life, begun in May, 1920.

Mrs. Maybelle D. Grove, as the married wife, obtained a divorce from her husband at the hands of Judge Charles M. Harris in Middlesex Court in a suit charging her husband with cruel and abusive treatment.

Within 10 days of that severance becoming absolute she and he appeared before Judge John C. Leggat in the same court today and filed a

MRS. COOLIDGE RUSHES TO HER DYING MOTHER

Northampton, March 26—Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, 78-year-old mother of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, is dying at the Cooley-Dickinson Hospital.

Dr. J. E. Hayes, her physician, after visiting his patient at 1 o'clock this afternoon, expressed doubt whether she would live until her daughter arrived from Washington tonight.

"Her condition is critical," said Dr. Hayes. "She is in pretty bad shape."

Mrs. Goodhue, who was stricken with influenza last December, suffered a relapse last night, but failed rapidly today.

Mrs. Coolidge, in touch with the hospital here by telephone, was informed her mother was near death and immediately started for this city.

GIRL'S LENTEN MALADY PUZZLES R. I. DOCTORS

Woonsocket, March 26—Her period of keenest pain is now upon Rose Perron, 23-year-old patient afflicted with a strange malady that has amazed physicians all over the country, the girl being a victim of stigmata, which in her case has taken the form of the wounds of Christ, in her instance, her palms and on her scalp where the crown of thorns rested on the Christus.

For 12 years she has suffered with the strange disease and at each Lenten period her pain becomes more acute. She has always expected death to come on Good Friday, and the last rites of the church are given her on that day. This year, too, she will be given extreme unction on that day.

She lies strapped to her bed, and for three years has eaten nothing, sipping occasionally from a glass of water containing a few drops of stimulant.

Though she complains of pain but

DANVERS POSTAL HEAD MISSING; LEAVES NOTE

The discovery of a farewell note, containing, according to postal inspectors, an admission of discrepancies in his accounts, led today to a search for Benjamin Newhall, Danvers postmaster, missing for the past three days.

Despite the presence of postal sleuths yesterday and today in the Danvers office, the Danvers police have not yet been officially notified of Newhall's disappearance, and the only information they have on the subject is a "street rumor" of his absence from duty.

According to Chief Postal Inspector Park D. Colvin of Boston, the finding of the farewell missive and the disappearance of the Danvers postmaster were reported to his department by the assistant postmaster and by Newhall's brother.

Colvin said he had assigned Postal Inspector James F. Casey of Salem to investigate the accounts of the Danvers office and a hasty report made by Casey today disclosed at least $1800 of postal moneys missing.

Casey declined to make public at this time the contents of the letter of farewell and would not affirm or deny the report that Newhall had threatened suicide in his alleged confession of misappropriation of funds.

Inspector Colvin declared Casey would make a detailed report to him tomorrow of his examination of Newhall's accounts.

Pity the Cod! It's Sacred No More!

Bills to put a codfish, a beanpot or a boot permanently on the Bay State auto number plates were rejected today by a legislative committee, after a hearing during which hilarity stripped the "sacred cod" of its halo.

Gloucester folk, led by Representative Martha N. Brooks, author of the bill, spoke of the cod industry as dating back to Eric the Red, the explorer.

"How about slaves and rum as a joint symbol if you're looking for something to represent the foundation of great fortunes?" interjected John R. Hurlburt of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce.

Beans ante-date the cod, Representative George P. Anderson of Boston declared, setting the bean's first connection with history as 1643, when the Legislature used them in voting, white for election, black for rejection.

"The bean is the purest emblem of democracy," he said. "A Saturday night dish on the tables of rich and poor alike. Even the panhandler on the streets asks for a dime to get a plate of beans."

HUB CONGESTION COST $26,000,000 ANNUALLY

Boston's traffic congestion costs pedestrians and car owners more than $26,000,000 annually.

This is the declaration made by the Harvard traffic surveyors, headed by Miller McClintock, in a statement today. Their recommendations for remedying the situation are to be published later.

Loss of time by both riders and pedestrians because of congestion is estimated to cost more than $24,000,000. Collisions of vehicles, directly attributable to congestion, are figured to entail another $2,000,000 loss.

In addition, congestion also causes a vast annual loss to consumers of commodities, prices of which are boosted high because trucking charges are increased by transportation delays, according to the report.

The report says approximately $17,000 persons ente. downtown Boston every business day, which means, with a 10-m nute loss of time for each person, a total loss of $,170,000 minutes.

"This is equivalent to 136,000 hours or 17,000 working days of

JAIL 15-YEAR-OLD BOY IN HIT-RUN DEATH CASE

Alphonse Devito, 15, of Medford, hit-and-run driver whose machine killed five-year-old Alice Bodge of Woburn last January, in Woburn court today was sentenced to one month in the House of Correction for going away without making known his identity after the accident.

Neil J. McConnigle, Woburn automobile man, will be recommended for the $1000 reward offered by Governor Fuller, shortly after the child's death for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the hit-and-run driver.

McConnigle turned over information to Chief of Police McCauley which resulted in the arrest of Devito and John Giardini, 17, of Hanover st., Boston. It was found that Devito was driving on Giardini's license, and the latter was found not guilty. The youths were arrested two weeks ago.

MAIL FLIER FOILS DEATH TWICE IN THREE DAYS

Cheating death for the second time in three days, Pilot Charles W. Parkhurst of the Boston to New York mail plane, NC-54, today dragged himself from his almost demolished plane when he made a forced landing at New Canaan, Ct., after the plane's oil line had become clogged.

Parkhurst left Boston at 6:15 Saturday night. He was lost in an impenetrable fog and after circling the Derbyshire for 2 hours made a successful landing about four miles from Northampton.

He left Northampton this morning for Hartford when he experienced his second mishap. Undaunted, he notified New York of his plight and a salvage corps was started for the scene.

When the plane struck the ground its under carriage was ripped away. The plane tilted to one side before coming to a stop in a wing was torn off.

Trial Divorce Put Down as Failure motion to vacate the October decree because "they wished to resume marital relations."

Their motion was supported by the assertion of their counsel, Frank J. Lehan of Cambridge, who informed the court that they had gone through a trial divorce, but discovered that it "did not take."

Judge Leggat readily assented to a revocation of the divorce order and that legal act also revoked a decree ordering Grove to pay $15 per month as alimony to his wife. In her testimony during the hearing of her divorce petition in October, Mrs. Grove told the court her husband frequently forced her to sleep on the floor and on several occasions had torn the clothes off her back.

She further testified that her husband, an accountant, $2 years old, was accustomed to come home intoxicated in the early morning hours and handle her roughly in arguments over money for her household expenses.

The husband did not contest the divorce, but took an active part in the discussion which centred around the question of alimony.

REALIZE MISTAKE

"Not companionate marriage, but trial divorces. That's what is needed today," Mrs. Grove said today in an interview with the Boston Evening American.

"The moment we separated we realized our mistake," she continued, "but like stubborn children we would not pocket pride, that invincible conquering which some time or another grips married folks and sets their marital love aside and tears it apart.

"Jim and I were secretly married seven years ago. We were just young kids, but we were madly in love with each other. You can't forget, the early days of love and romance, even though a divorce may legally separate you. We couldn't.

"Our lives were so entwined that since October, when I got my divorce, life seemed to become drab and I ceased to smile. Neither of us sought solace in any one else.

"Well, last Christmas day Jim phoned. He wished me good luck and I returned the greeting. And then he said how strange it was that we were not together for the first Yuletide in seven years. That sort of broke the ice and he came to see me.

CHRISTMAS CHECK

"I think his Christmas card really meant something to me. I cherished it. He gave me a check for a gift and from that moment we talked of coming together again. But what to do? How to go about it? We inquired and learned that we must face the court.

"It took courage, that trip to the court, but we made it and Jim and I left it arm in arm today, as happy as larks, and sure of the new recipe on which marital soundness is based.

"I feel like a new bride. But I am a wiser one now. I've stepped all over the milestones and from now on my married life is going to be strewn with roses. Now I must hound hunt all over again. If you but knew the happiness that is to bring me.

"Ever since I've known we were going to live together again I have looked forward with the glee of a child to decorating our love nest once more.

"What time I had to think! And how I went over those quarrelsome details which are bound to come up in married life, but which I viewed with such indolence. Today I know I was to blame for some of them and while I wasn't always to blame I did my share in progressing that little ball of discontent in our home. But we know differently.

"I thought it was because of our close intimacy. We were never away from each other. We had no children.

"I believe if we had taken vacations away from each other we would not have come to the point of divorce. But indiscretions and slight differences took on such gigantic proportions that I was positive we were not mated.

"Flying away for a few months has remedied that. There won't be a second honeymoon. I'll honeymoon fifteen per new home, feeling every bit that goes into it with a hug and a kiss.

"You say I was big and had courage to do this? Well, where there is love there is sacrifice and the woman who won't wilt slightly for the man she loves and knows she loves, way down deep in her heart, will never be happy.

"Friends! What will they say? Oh, I thought all about it, but I figured it out that the rest of my life would not be with friends. I had to have my husband. He would be the best one. One can't live alone and be naturally content.

"You can't live with a man for seven years and then forget him in the next breath. I am so happy, well—well, I'm shaking? I must be love?"

Mrs. Grove makes her home with her mother in Thorndike st., Cambridge. While there won't be a family party, she said, there will be a Twosome reunion that will beat every other kind of a party.

LESS THAN 2,000,000 ARE NOW UNEMPLOYED

Washington, March 26 (INS)—The total number of idle workers in America is now only about 1,874,000, secretary of Labor James J. Davis reported today to the Senate in responses to a resolution of inquiry.

Davis declared the unemployment situation was being met by the government's elaborate building program and building by states, municipalities and counties and private construction work. He declared there was an "upward trend" in employment for the month of February.

GERMAN PLANE HOPS TO ERIN ON U. S. TRIP

The plane—a Junkers—is the Bremen, a sister ship of the Europa. Both attempted to cross the Atlantic last year, but were compelled to turn back, the Europa being badly damaged in a forced landing. The Bremen got beyond the Irish coast before turning back.

The Bremen does not carry radio.

The hopoff today was attended by the utmost secrecy. It was known that Koehl was planning the flight, but he had indicated that he would not start for a week or two. His decision to leave secretly was evidently due to the numerous tragedies which have accompanied westbound transatlantic attempts.

Flying conditions were reported favorable over Holland and the North sea.

The motor of the Bremen is the same type that was used when the endurance record was broken by German fliers.

Baron von Huenefeld is a wealthy enthusiast and a friend of the former crown prince. It is understood that he is financing the flight. It has long been his ambition to have a German plane make the first westbound transatlantic flight.

Capt. Fitzmaurice of the Irish Free State air force sighted the Bremen off the Irish coast and escorted the Germans to the Baldonnel airdrome. The plane landed without mishap.

Start of Transatlantic Flight Surprises Berlin

Berlin, March 26 (AP)—Another attempt to conquer the Atlantic from east to west was gotten under way today with the hop of a Junkers plane from Tempelhofer airdrome, to Baldonnel, Ireland, on the first lap of the hazardous journey.

Neither Tempelhofer officials nor the families of the pilots professed to be aware that a long distance hop was planned so soon, as the men had announced that they were up for a trial flight. The Bremen was brought to Tempelhofer field by Fresom Desaiu Saturday night.

Even Capt. Koehl's wife did not know that her husband was probably on his way to America, for he told her that he was merely going to try the Bremen out on a test flight.

In Lufthansa circles the hopoff caused great surprise. Capt. Koehl's automobile still stands in the airdrome.

Baron Ehrnfried Gunthier von Huenefeld was a passenger in the Bremen in the attempted non-stop flight from Dessau, Germany, to America on Aug. 15, 1927. Encountering gales off the Irish coast, the plane returned to its starting place after a 22-hour flight.

Another Junkers plane had taken off at the same time, but was forced down at Bremen within six hours. The baron is connected with the North German Lloyd Steamship Company. Capt. Hermann Koehl was a pilot on that flight with Capt. Friedrich Loose, with whom he later engaged in an unsuccessful endeavor to break the endurance record for sustained flight.

Koehl was born in New Ulm in 1888. He was a captain of engineers at the start of the World War and later trained as a pilot. He was shot down twice, but escaped from a French prison camp and made his way back to Germany. He has specialized on night flying since the war. He is married but has no children.

The baron is also married. He saw service, but was transferred to the consular service before the war.

Might Be Worse

MISS 1930
Here is a sketch by James Montgomery Flagg, famous artist, giving his conception of what the 1930 flapper will be.

Fliers May Meet Weather Which Halted Hinchliffe

New York, March 26 (AP)—The three German aviators in the monoplane Bremen will meet conditions very similar to those into which Capt. Hinchliffe disappeared if they attempt a transatlantic flight at this season, Dr. James H. Kimball of the United States weather bureau said today.

"They will encounter the same low clouds and below freezing temperatures that Capt. Hinchliffe faced," said the unofficial starter of all the transatlantic flights from America. A temperature of 30 degrees was reported from the Grand Banks last night, 36 degrees from St. John's and 34 degrees from Cape Race this morning.

"A temperature of 30 degrees was re-storms on the Atlantic at present. If the storm is made tomorrow the fliers would encounter, probably somewhere between Newfoundland and New York, the disturbance which is today in the Mississippi valley."

GIRL IS MARKED WITH WOUNDS OF CHRIST

little, she is forced so often to clench her left fist which she can move so slightly that the nails are growing into the wounds on the palm.

Rev. Fr. Vincent of the Holy Family church gives her communion every day, and her bed is lined with statues of the saints and with relics which she prizes.

Fr. Vincent spends a part of each day at her bedside. He declares the girl to be a living saint, an instrument of God, and a blessing to the parish of the Holy Family Church and the city of Woonsocket. He is convinced that the girl, always deeply religious, has been selected by God to bestow blessings on all with whom she comes in contact.

All sorts of persons, from all parts of the country, some well and others ailing, some crippled and deformed, Catholics, Protestants and Jews, visit her bedside. Many of them say that she is the right hand on their heads or on the parts of their bodies that are afflicted. No cures have been reported to have come from her touch, but always the supplicants seem to leave with a feeling that they have been in the presence of a holy person.

On a sunday, upward of a hundred people visit her home. The street is lined with motor cars. She refuses her presence to no one, so long as her strength lasts, and many leave the house in tears, thankful for having seen the girl, and with a feeling that their cares and worries are as nothing when compared with hers.

Specialists of Boston say that the Woonsocket case is baffling. They say that there are cases of stigmata in this country and abroad, but know of none that have taken the form of wounds of the cross and the crown of thorns of Christ.

They describe the disease as one of advanced hysteria, not in its accepted sense of crying and laughing, but a disease of the mind. They say that it sometimes comes from a highly neurotic condition and is a form of self-hypnosis.

INJURED POLICE OFFICER IS MISSING

Police of the Back Bay station, with the police of other divisions, are today seeking a man for whom they need no description, for he is one of their own number, Patrolman Thomas F. Nolan, who disappeared mysteriously on Friday and has not been heard from since.

The first investigation led to his home at 4 Bay View pl., South Boston, where Mrs. Nolan told them he had gone away in his automobile to have his shoulder treated by a physician, but did not give the physician's name or address.

Nolan was hurt in July, 1926, when on traffic duty, an Elevated car striking his stand at Boylston st. and Massachusetts ave.

A few weeks later, while removing a man from the basement of the Boston Opera House, a section of a bulkhead fell on him, injuring his shoulder in virtually the same place it had been hurt in his previous accident, and crippling his arm.

Last Friday he was given the rest of the day off, when he told Sergeant Covington Waugh at the station house that he wanted to go to his physician for another treatment of his shoulder. He went directly home, and informed Mrs. Nolan that he was going to have an operation performed on his bad shoulder, to have a clot of blood removed, in an effort to regain the use of his arm.

Officer Says Wife Shot Self Dead When Trapped With Rival

New York, March 26 (INS)—Thomas Weeks, motorcycle patrolman, questioned today concerning the death of his wife in her apartment in Brooklyn last night, said she shot herself after he had found her in the company of another man.

Weeks and his wife had been separated for a month. He saw her walking with another man, followed her home and demanded an explanation.

Weeks claims he drew his revolver, handed it to his wife and said:

"I'm sick of it all—you might as well kill me now."

Instead, he said, she shot herself.

BOSTON'S MOST COSTLY 'JAM' IS TRAFFIC

eight hours each," the survey board declares. "It may be estimated that each minute's time is worth one cent.

"While some of these movements take place when the individual would not be gainfully occupied, loss of time must be taken from other useful occupations, or from recreational time, and affects a loss which the individual would often be glad to redeem, even at the payment of a substantial price.

"If it is borne in mind that many of the minutes lost are by persons driving private cars or commercial vehicles, it will be seen that the estimate of 1 cent per minute is more than conservative.

"On this basis the 2,170,000 minutes daily loss give a total daily monetary loss of $21,700, or an annual total community burden of $24,510,000 on the basis of a 300-day year. To this may be added the burden of losses resulting from accidents, tentatively estimated at $2,-094,210 per year in Boston."

The report gives the Chicago congestion loss as more than $600,000 a day, and the New York loss as more than $1,000,000 a day.

Explaining the loss to consumers of commodities, through traffic delay, the report says:

"The price of every commodity which is consumed in the city of Boston is composed in part of cartage charges. Typical cartage movements are in the following sequence: Terminal to warehouse, warehouse to retail store, retail store to ultimate consumer.

"These cartage movements may be miles or less apart, according to the character of the business. (All cartage charges always compose a substantial percentage of the total carriage charges upon typical staple commodities from their point of origin outside of the city to their delivery to the final consumer."

No attempt was made to estimate the monetary losses from this source. The other estimates, the surveyors state, were made without any attempt at exactness, but with a view toward giving a general impression of the monetary value of individual delays.

HUB MAN CONVICTED ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

James Pisco, 27, of Boston, in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today was found guilty of manslaughter in causing the death of Leo Chernovsky of Hollander st., Roxbury, last July. Pisco was also found guilty of assault on Harold McDonald.

Chernovsky was killed when he went to the aid of McDonald, who had resented insults to two sisters, Ruth and Grace Summers of Tremont st., said to have been offered by Pisco and Mario De Marco, 18, of Prince st. De Marco has previously pleaded guilty to similar charges as those on which Pisco was convicted and was sentenced to from four to eight years in state prison.

Date for the hearing on the writ has been tentatively set for next Monday.

New York, March 26—Transcontinental bus service, New York to Los Angeles, will be started soon if plans now under way go through without a hitch. A gigantic merger, involving 232 bus companies from coast to coast, will make the service possible. The trip will require six days and six nights and the cost will be $56.50, half of the present railroad fare.

The system, operated under the National Motor Bus Association, Chicago, will connect the independent lines now in operation, and will include equipment valued at more than $150,000,000, not including State franchises.

Traffic in the East will be handled by the Cardinal Stages, which operates between New York and Philadelphia. Other large companies are the Interstate Motor Bus line, Western Motorway, Pacific Coast lines and Southern Transportation lines.

Final papers making effective this first transcontinental bus merger were reported to have been signed at a conference in the Hotel Commodore, this city, Saturday. Details as to how the cross-country traffic will be handled are now being worked out, according to Martin Rubin, New York legal representative of the company.

DON'T CHANGE 'EM YET! COLD WAVE IS DUE

Curb that sportive feeling and don't change 'em yet, for a cold wave appeared today on the western horizon and is officially predicted to chill New England to the marrow within 48 hours.

Before that frigid area moves into this section, however, Greater Boston will enjoy a few more hours of comfortable temperatures, robbed somewhat of their beneficence by cloudy skies and possible showers.

Out in the far northwest, where the frigid wave is taking form, the mercury today had slumped to below zero marks, but the eastern seaboard is not expected to shiver in such extremities of temperature when the oncoming chill arrives.

Official forecasts for northern and southern New England call for thunderstorms tonight, not a novelty for them, as both sections have been visited by these aerial fireworks since the mercury started to climb on Saturday last.

CRACKSMEN GET $600 IN SAFE

A safe in the office of the Whiting Milk Company, 1460 North Shore rd., Revere, was broken open early today and robbed of $600 to $1000.

The discovery was made by one of the office employes, who found the door of the safe open and the inner strong box wrecked.

The money taken was collections turned in by drivers, but was an unusually small amount, owing to the fact that a deposit was made in a bank Saturday.

Despite the fact that drivers were passing back and forth in front of the office getting their loans, no one's attention was attracted to the office, as far as the police could learn.

BOSTON FORFEITS BENTON TRUST FUND

The City of Boston failed, in the years 1923 and 1924, to appropriate at least three per cent of the amount available for department expenses for the purchase of books, and therefore a trust fund left for the Boston Public Library under the will of the late Josiah H. Benton must be paid to the rector of Trinity Church for the benefit of the poor, according to a Supreme Court decision today.

The decision involved a question as to whether the term department expenses included expenses of schools, police, licensing board and finance commission. The court decided all were included.

The "most beautiful legs in the world" are those of Mille Mistinguette, French actress, who values them at $1,000,000. Picture above shows that they really do look like a million dollars.

Paderewski, celebrated Polish pianist, is also shown here with his $50,000 hands, for it would indeed be unfortunate if anything should happen to them to make it impossible for him to play.

MEN ADOPTING SILK 'UNDIES' SHOCK TRADE

Masculine preferences for silk sox and sentimental "undies" are alarming many men's wear merchants who dread possible standardization of masculine dress.

It is an oft-repeated claim that men take their style leads from women these days. Those long, slim feminine legs that appear to stretch half-way across hotel lobbies, occupy the major portion of subway and street car aisles and flash around dance hall floors, have had their effect.

Men in hundreds of instances have abandoned heavy underwear, woolen socks and high shoes for winter. Anxious merchants around the country blame the passing of woolen socks and underwear on the pantomime that seems to place men in possession of full details as regards feminine outer and underwear. Men may have learned some of the details of feminine dress at home, but it is not regarded as likely that they would ape their own women folks.

Merchants snap their fingers scornfully at the suggestion that mild winters cause a stack of lavender and peach-colored underwear to grow in a man's dressing table drawer. Neither will they admit that the popularity of lisle and silk hosiery, worn with low-cut shoes, can be checked up against mild weather or the fairly modest popularity of spats.

Men are dressing like the women as far as they possibly can and their preferences have this season cost merchants a great deal of money.

CHILD'S DEATH MAY AFFECT HOLMES CASE

Because of the death of the child born to Antoinette Fortin, former tearoom waitress, one of the charges against Guy Willis Holmes, unfrocked New Bedford Methodist minister, may be dropped when Holmes goes on trial in Suffolk Superior Court.

This announcement was made today by Asst. Dist. Atty. William H. McDonnell, who also announced a postponement until April 9 of the second trial of Holmes, which had been scheduled to start today. It is understood the reason is to give defense counsel time to take a deposition from an Ohio witness.

Holmes is accused of misconduct with "Tony" Fortin at a Boston hotel. The jury in the first trial disagreed and Holmes will be retried on this charge. The other charge related to the fatherhood of the child and while it was not dropped before the first trial, McDonnell said he now thought it advisable to drop it.

The child, which was a boy, lived only a month and 13 days, dying of inanition, according to records at City Hall.

RAMS INTO POST TO SAVE BOY

The life of a four-year-old boy was saved today by the quick work of Jeremiah Higgins of Waverly ave., Everett, who deliberately steered into a telephone pole to avoid hitting him, but Higgins' brother, John, was flung headlong through the windshield and severely injured.

Higgins was driving down Belingham ave. hill, Beachmont, when Theodore Nelson ran in front of the car. Higgins swerved onto the sidewalk and the car hit the pole at high speed, snapping it off and demolishing the front end of the automobile.

The injured man, with cuts and bruises all over his body, was rushed to Chelsea Memorial Hospital. The driver escaped with a severe shaking up.

MRS. COOLIDGE HASTENING TO SICK MOTHER

Mrs. Coolidge is accompanied by her son, John, her house guest, Mrs. H. B. Hill of Northampton, Mrs. Hill's son, Jack, Lieut.-Commr. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, and John J. Fitzgerald, a secret service man.

They are expected to arrive here shortly after midnight.

The First Lady has already made two trips to this city to see her mother, who was an early victim of influenza. The first trip was made just before the journey of the President and Mrs. Coolidge to the Pan-American conference at Havana, and the other a few weeks ago.

FIREMEN GET GAS PERMITS, BUT—HA! HA!

Sedate City Fathers laughed up their sleeves in the main municipal building on School st. today when it was (inadvertently) discovered that the fire laddies have been persistent violators of a stringent city ordinance designed to check fire hazards in metropolitan Boston.

The cat got out of the bag before the board of street commissioners when Acting Fire Commissioner Daniel F. Sennott and Acting Superintendent Albert Caulfield of the fire prevention board appeared before them to make application for permits to store gasoline in 13 fire stations throughout the city.

It developed in the course of the desultory conversation between the "visiting" firemen and their City Hall hosts, that since the fire apparatus in the Hub has been motorized only a few permits have ever been granted to the respective stations to keep gasoline in storage, although gasoline has been stored at all stations.

And this notwithstanding the fact that many of the stations are located in hazardous fire areas in the South End, West End, South Boston and Charlestown.

The 13 permits sought and obtained today for $1 apiece by the fire department fulfills the city ordinance on gasoline storage for the entire department, so that, in the opinion of the street commissioners, "twas better late than never."

Daughters of K.K.K. New Name Offered D. A. R.

Detroit, March 26 (AP)—Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, speaking before the Detroit open forum, yesterday declared "certain members" of the Daughters of the American Revolution "are attempting to behead a number of eminent and thinking Americans who have had the courage to point out our social and political faults."

"Although the Daughters of the American Revolution are descendants of a group of men, every one of whose leaders had a price on his head at the time we achieved our independence, certain members of their organization are 'out to get' American citizens who dare to criticize our government," Dr. Hough declared.

"Now that the Ku Klux Klan has fallen into comparative disrepute," he said, "a number of pseudicals have suggested that the D. A. R. might well be called the Daughters of the Ku Klux Klan."

DEFENDS COAL MEN IN 'WAR ON UNION'

Washington, March 26 (AP)—A statistical defense of the abandonment of union operation by the Consolidation Coal Company of West Virginia was given to the Senate committee investigating the bituminous industry today by George Anderson, executive vice-president.

Testifying last week, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., a stockholder in the Consolidation company, suggested that Anderson be allowed to answer for details of the concern's labor policy.

Anderson read statistics of operations for 1924 and 1927, explaining that the mines were on a union basis in 1924 and on "open shop" basis in 1927. The comparative statistics for those two years indicated increases for 1927 as follows:

"Men working per day, 31%, or 7½ per cent.

"Increased annual earnings per man, $327, or 27 per cent.

"Payroll increase, $1,331,000 or 36 per cent.

"Increased production, 2,223,000 or 66⅔ per cent.

"Increase in days worked per man, 123 or 95 per cent."

Turning to the struggle between the United Mine Workers and the operators, Anderson characterized it as "industrial war."

"It is a war, not a battle," he went on, "and has already been going on twice as long as the World War."

The operator referred to the membership of the miners' union as "285,000 men constantly in the field as a standing army," adding that "on the operators' side, however, we have an unorganized mob."

He disavowed any bitterness toward unionism as such, while at the same time blaming much of the distress in the soft coal industry upon the stand taken by the union for maintenance of "the mystic $7.50 a day wage" after post-war readjustment.

SUSPECT IS HELD IN ROBBERY OF SAILOR

John McIntyre of Dwight st., South End, in Municipal Court today was held in $5000 for a hearing April 2, on charges of robbery and assault on Emerald G. Gerding, a sailor on the U. S. S. Bushnell, who is at the Chelsea Naval Hospital with his name on the danger list. Gerding told police he was walking across the Common when two men set on him, beat him severely and robbed him of $20. Gerding woke up in the hospital with a fractured jaw, several teeth missing, and possible internal injuries.

He gave Sergt. James O'Neil of station 4 a description of one of his assailants and the sergeant arrested McIntyre. When he took the man to Gerder's bedside for identification the sailor leaped at McIntyre, and it took the services of several orderlies to hold him down.

LEXINGTON DAMAGES PANAMA CANAL LOCKS

Balboa, Canal Zone, March 26 (AP)—Damaged locks and the scraped sides of the U. S. S. Lexington today testified to the difficulty the giant aircraft carrier had in passing through the Panama canal. A high wind blowing made the handling of the big vessel difficult.

Three heavy concrete lamposts were torn down as the ship passed through the three chambers of the Gatun locks at the Atlantic end of the canal and another near the Pacific. The Lexington got through in less time than the sister Saratoga, which is of the same size, taking 12 hours, while it took the Saratoga three days to pass from Cristobal to Balboa.

WALSH LEADS FIGHT FOR NEW $4 INQUIRY

Washington, March 26—The Senate this afternoon rejected the House plan for an investigation of the $4 submarine disaster by a presidential commission and insisted upon its own proposal for a congressional inquiry.

An effort by Senator Hale (R.) of Maine to put the Senate on record as favoring the presidential inquiry met with defeat by a vote of 24 to 41. The Senate again "insisted" upon its own plan, which the House defeated some time ago.

If House and Senate conferees fail to agree, it was indicated, the Senate will conduct a separate inquiry.

In the debate Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, asserted Hale was "putting up the white flag."

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, said the Hale move constituted accession to propaganda circulated against the Senate practice of investigating administration of the government business.

Senator Gerry, Democrat, Rhode Island, said the people were entitled to a complete investigation of the disaster.

$15 for One Room in Jail and Guest Complained!

Edward Murray of the South End trusts nobody, particularly the police, when money is concerned.

For that reason, when arrested for drunkenness, Murray planned $15 to his underwear before he reached the police station.

After being booked he was taken to the city prison and put into a cell occupied by John Davis, of address unknown.

Murray promptly went to sleep and in the morning was told that he was free to go as it was his first offense.

"This is a peculiar room I had up there," he said to the desk sergeant. "I went in with $15 and I came out with nothing, and I didn't order anything. What do you charge for that room?"

"Wait a minute," replied the sergeant, who then hurried upstairs to interview Davis. The latter denied all knowledge, but after he had been stripped the police found the $15 pinned to his underwear, he having taken a leaf from Murray's book.

In consequence Davis appeared before Judge Sullivan in Municipal Court today, and was given two months each on charges of larceny and drunkenness.

That hotel is run on very strict principles," the judge remarked in imposing sentence.

means many new things to make the home more beautiful. On a bright new silk puff for mother's room, fresh new curtains for the guest room, and some new soft warm blankets, or a beautiful $7.00 silk rayon Bates spread for only $5.50. And next, the best place to buy them, where prices are reasonable and you may buy all sorts of lovely odd things to make your home a charming individual one. I know just the place to go. To a store that opened last Saturday, a brand new store at an old stand —"Lepies," 84 Chauncy st.

The Strati Beauty Salon

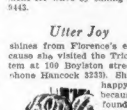
at 41 Winter Street, 7th floor, was fairly "stormed" with your friends last week getting one of his famous "Le Mur" permanents during the $8.00 price week. Consequently he just couldn't take appointments for all who wanted to come, and he has extended the $8.00 price until the end of this week. This is positively the last week to get one of his $15.00 permanents for $8.00. He gives good looking bobs for 50c, marcels for 75c, facials, scalp treatments and dyes. He's in new quarters to take care of his growing business. Make appointment for wave by calling Liberty 9443.

Utter Joy

shines from Florence's eyes, because she visited the Tricho system at the 169 Boylston street (telephone Hancock 3233). She has a happy heart because she found that superfluous hair was removed painlessly from her face, and that it will not grow again. Tricho System's scientific procedure is endorsed by doctors and by many, many patients who have had treatments. Women in this day of modern science cannot afford to have a blemish which can be removed. And now that fashion decrees sheer stockings it's really a thing that any woman should attend to.

I Have Found Him!

Who do you suppose?—no other than Finelli! Finelli, who used to make those stunning suits and riding habits for us while he was with Hickson. He's now "on his own" at 448 Washington St. (Dexter Bldg.), Room 1108. He'll make your new riding habit for you or a suit built to fit, showing the graceful lines that enhance your personality, made from the smartest of imported materials. His prices are reasonable. I'm so glad I found him, and you can call him at Hubbard 9857.



The Audrey Hat Shop

at 110 Tremont St., New Studio Bldg., Room 625, is giving us a pre-Easter reduction on all their lovely, made-to-order and fitted-to-the-head hats. We may have a felt for $8.50, a smart visca in all shades for $10.50, or satina, ribbon hats and straws from $8.50 to $15.00. "Audrey Hats" fit snugly but rest lightly on your head and they are planned to suit your own individual type. The colors and styles are new and beautiful and I know you'll be just thrilled to hear of this pre-Easter reduction on such adorable hats.

I've Something to Tell you about Evelyn's, 8 Winter St., 3rd floor! It's exciting "news" there it is! Two of her lovely new dresses for $25.00. Perhaps you'll select two for daytime wear, one tailored and a new print, or a soft colorful evening dress and a tailored dress for afternoon. A black dress would look smart indeed with one of Evelyn's new filigree metal belts. The belts are priced at $1.95. There are some adorable ensembles, in gray, green, tan or rose beige in wisely selected styles for $18.50 and a beautiful display of $18.75 dresses. Let's hurry to this alluring shop!

New, Exclusive

and exquisitely graceful are the chiffon and service weight $2.50 Gordon "V-Line" stockings at the Specialty Shoppe, Strand Theatre Bldg., 545 Columbia st., Upham's Corner, Dorchester. These lovely hose come in all the new Easter shades and the colors are so new that they are "unforgettable." There are others priced from 95c to $2.25. Gordon's children's socks are on sale, and everything in the way of alluring accessories from gloves to stockings. The hats are lovely, too. So many things in one "shoppe!"

Helen Lynch

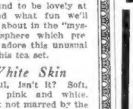
is back with us, bless her heart! with a pre-Easter surprise offer of one of her fine Frederick Vita-Tonic permanents for only $2.00. This includes shampoo and finger wave. The Frederick Vita-Tonic permanent is especially beneficial for gray or white shades of hair as they grow more lovely with this beneficial treatment. Evening appointments may be had by calling Liberty 0084. Don't forget now! Helen Lynch, Room 324, 110 Tremont Street. What luck for us, Anne!

Three Very Tired Ladies

walked into the office of my Foot Specialist, Dr. Allen P. Saul, Room 812, New Studio Bldg., 110 Tremont st. They were weary and sick at heart because they had foot troubles. But when they came out—one had an almost invisible elastic stocking, priced at $6.75, for varicose veins. One had a pair of arch support $8.00 shoes in a very smart style for Easter. And the other had one of Dr. Saul's scientific treatments for corns and callouses. If you could have seen them as they walked gladly down the street, you'd tell your friends about it!

Tea for Two

Just you and I, served in an adorable blue and tan Japanese tea set which came from the Yamato Art Shop at 128 Boylston Street. It cost only $4.75. Just think of a 23-piece set in blue and tan lustre ware with a cherry blossom design for that price. It's the most interesting tea set I have seen for a long time. But all things are bound to be lovely at Yamato's. And what fun we'll have browsing about in the "mysterious" atmosphere which prevails there. I adore this unusual shop as I do this tea set.



Soft White Skin

is so beautiful, isn't it? Soft, creamy skin, pink and white, and lovely, but not marred by the blemish of superfluous hair. It does appall anyone, no matter how lovely their face may be. To remove this blemish, Elizabeth G. Sparkes, Room 602, 120 Tremont Street, uses a magic needle. She is an electric needle specialist, and she works with utmost skill. Patients come from far and near because her touch is sure and fine, and once the superfluous hair is removed it will never return. For appointments your friends may call Hancock 7352.

That Natural Wave

that Maizie has that falls so gracefully into becoming lines about her face is a permanent. Mae E. Shyne, Room 605, 178 Tremont Street, 6th floor, gave it to her. And everybody says, "Why, Maizie, where did you get that wave?" I had my hair done there, too, you know. This year there is a special price of $10.00 on permanent waves. Miss Shyne gives lovely marcels, finger waves and shampoos, and you'll feel quite at home in her delightful little shop with its black and orange fittings. Call Capitol 5850 for appointments!

Keep Young!

For that is the Secret of Lasting Youth, discovered by Dr. John Post, the Camroz Beauty Scientist. His Beauty Course has made 100,000 women look from five to ten years younger. Then they "keep on keeping young by keeping on" with the Absorption treatment. It whitens the skin, makes it healthy, removes wrinkles, blackheads and sallowness, and fills out thin necks. If you use it you'll stop growing old. A $5 facial demonstration for $2. Tell your friends to call at Post Institute, 6 Beacon st., room 910, or telephone Haymarket 1647.

Reader Is Helped

DEAR Martha Lee:

I would like you to know how much I have been aided by your cooking lessons. The help I have received is invaluable to me. Here are just a few of the benefits I have derived:

1—I am able to cook more economical meals.

2—I have gained the knowledge of concocting more attractive and effective dishes.

3—I have learned many minor points in the art of cooking which save much of my time and money.

4—I have a supply of simple but effective recipes for future reference.

5—Your chef days have proved very interesting and I am sure that I am not the only one who appreciates your kindness and thoughtfulness in inviting us to visit the kitchen.

6—I have enjoyed the social part of it immensely, and I certainly appreciate the wonderful advantage that was given to me through the kindness of Martha Lee and the Boston American.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. E. H.

Tuna Fish Mold Is Addition to the Menu

TUNA FISH MOLD—Separate into flakes or small pieces enough tuna fish to make two cupfuls. Mix with 2 c. of mashed potatoes, highly seasoned with salt and pepper. Add one c. of thin cream, ½ c. stale bread crumbs and 2 stiffly beaten eggs. One-half c. chopped green olives is an improvement or a quarter c. of chopped pickles.

Have ready a ring mold, very thickly greased, put the mixture into this, cover with oiled paper, and steam for an hour or until firm. Place in a warm oven for a few minutes to aid its shrinkage from the sides, and turn out on a bed of cress or other greens on a round platter. Fill the center with peas and diced carrots, warmed until hot throughout and seasoned with butter, salt and pepper.

soft boiled or scrambled are more appetizing seasoned with
LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

Cheese and Macaroni Loaf Is Worth Trying

Cheese and Macaroni Loaf. ½ c. macaroni broken into pieces, 1 c. milk, 1 c. soft bread crumbs, 1 tbsp. butter, 1 tbsp. chopped green pepper, 2 tsp. each chopped onion and parsley, 3 eggs, 1 tsp. salt, ½ c. American cheese rubbed through grater.

Cook the macaroni in boiling salted water until tender, and rinse in cold water. Cook the parsley, onion and pepper in a little water with the butter. Pour off the water or allow it to boil away. Beat the egg white and yolk separately. Mix the ingredients, cutting and folding in the stiffly beaten whites at the last. Line a quart baking dish with buttered paper; turn the mixture into it; set the baking dish in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven from one-half to three-fourths of an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

Helps Out Flavor

CHEFS and housewives everywhere are enthusiastic about a new marshmallow creme that adds extra-delicious flavor to endless food dishes. It is particularly appreciated in hot drinks, soups, delicious salads, wonderfully thick toppings and fillings, dainty desserts, ice cream sundaes, sandwich and wafer spreads.

This creme is made from only the highest quality ingredients and will keep in perfect condition indefinitely. One of the advantages of asking for this brand is that you get a can full right up to the cover—it will not settle nor stir down noticeably below its original volume, which is certainly interesting considering the experience many of us have had of finding the cans of some brands only half or three-quarters filled.

If the creme is too stiff, it is only necessary to warm the tin slightly. To thin it, add warm water, cream or fruit juices and stir thoroughly with a fork. To spread smoothly, use a wet knife, and be sure that the cake layers are cooled.

For a delicious icing, it is only necessary to add a little warm water to the creme and stir with a fork until smooth. Then add vanilla and powdered sugar to suit your taste. A thick sprinkling of cocoanut, Southern style, will complete a cake as easy to look at as it is to eat.

An especially delicious sauce for ice-cream, delicate pudding or to serve with a white cake is made by boiling together 1 c. of sugar and ½ c. water until it forms a fairly thick syrup.

To this add 2 tbsp. of marshmallow creme. Stir this in thoroughly and pour the mixture slowly over the beaten white of 1 egg, beating constantly.

Color the sauce pale green with a little pure vegetable coloring and add 1 drop of oil of peppermint. Last of all add 1 c. of crushed pineapple drained of its juice.

Savory Beet Salad Made by This Rule

SAVORY BEET SALAD—One-half tbsp. gelatine, 2 tbsp. cold water, ¼ c. boiling water, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tbsp. sugar, ½ tsp. prepared mustard, 2 tbsp. vinegar, 2 tbsp. minced onion, 2 c. cooked beets, diced, ½ c. celery, cut fine.

Soften gelatine in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add salt, sugar, mustard, vinegar and onion. When the mixture begins to stiffen, stir in beets and celery. Turn into individual molds. Garnish with strips of hard cooked egg whites. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Recipe makes six salads.

Chef From Hotel

FOR many decades the name Parker House has been synonymous with the superlative in good cookery, so we may confidently expect an interested audience in the Martha Lee Kitchen next Wednesday afternoon, at 2:40, when Mr. John V. Bonello, chef of the Parker House, will demonstrate many of the dishes that have helped the Parker House to achieve its enviable reputation for unsurpassed cuisine.

Mr. Bonello was born in Asti, Italy, and became connected with prominent hotels in Switzerland, France and Italy. He has been with the Parker House since 1911, under the original Whipple management.

With the new and enlarged Martha Lee Kitchen, we have ample accommodations for the many progressive homemakers who will certainly be anxious to learn how to make the delicious, yet practical dishes that Mr. Bonello will prepare.

Open New Course

TODAY marks the opening of the Second Course in the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery. There are still a few registrations available, so send your name in today, if you would like to share the pleasures and benefits that other New England housewives are anxious to secure from these free lessons in cookery.

The classes are on Monday and Thursday, from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. Wednesday is always observed as Chef's day.

Each course lasts twelve weeks. In order to be eligible for a diploma, it is necessary to attend twelve lessons during the twelve weeks, either day you prefer or both. For instance, if you cannot come at all one week, you may make up your attendance by coming twice the next week.

Twenty dollars in gold is also awarded at the close of each course for the best letter on the lessons.

Hints for Cakes

ALL cakes can be divided into two classes—sponge and butter cakes.

After baking sponge cakes, the pans should be inverted and the cakes should hang in the pan until cool. Do not turn butter cakes out on the rack until they have cooled in the pan for five or ten minutes.

Small cakes and layer cakes require higher temperatures than loaf cakes.

And of course I needn't remind you never to jar or move a cake until the baking is entirely completed.

Pans for angel and sponge cakes should not be greased.

Heavy cakes result from too much sugar or butter. To prevent coarse grained cakes, do not use too much raising ingredients, cream the butter well with the sugar and beat the batter sufficiently.

A solid or heavy cake results from too much flour.

This sudsy bridge saves steps!

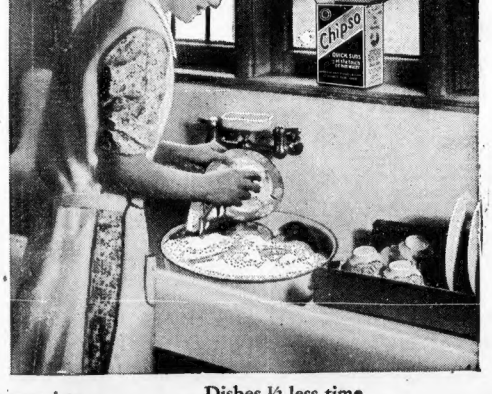
With two boxes of CHIPSO, one is always within reach

How can drudgery-saving Chipso flakes actually save you steps, too? The scheme is delightfully simple: Keep one box of Chipso by the washing machine or wash-tub—and the other by the kitchen sink. Then Chipso is where you want it, when you want it—merely a hand's reach away!

You'll find you can dip a cup into the big 25c box whenever you want a foaming tubful of instant suds to soak your clothes clean. And you'll find another Chipso box just as handy when you want to tip out a few flakes into the waiting dishpan!

Possibly you use Chipso to escape only the hard rubbing and boiling of an old-fashioned washday. But Chipso's wonderful suds can save your hands three times a day from greasy dishwater.

PROCTER & GAMBLE



Soaks clothes clean

"While I was still buried in the tub every Monday, my new neighbor's line was filled with gleaming, white clothes. Soon I learned her secret—to soak clothes clean with Chipso! A good squeezing—and out comes the dirt! Then, just the least bit of rubbing on spots—and my clothes are as white as my neighbor's and out on the line just as soon!" Mrs. F. L. C., Wakefield, Mass.

The most amazing success in the history of household soap

Dishes ⅓ less time

"I may sigh when I see the stack of greasy dinner dishes—but how different I feel in a moment when they are standing in a pan of hot water that is frothy with Chipso suds! For nothing can 'do its stuff' like Chipso. China, utensils—Chipso washes them so well that I just dry them. And that means white, smooth hands!" Mrs. C. R., Putnam, Conn.

Some Real Beans

PRISCILLA, in her Puritan kitchen, gave the world the first baked beans that helped to make Boston famous, and now one of our largest food manufacturers has followed her achievement by giving us beans not only baked with the care and thought that New Englanders devote to their beans, but immediately accessible for the table.

New England selects beans with the care and precision with which an epicure considers a menu. Prefernece is shown for the California pea beans and for the genuine molasses sweetener and the proper portions of pork.

These new ready-to-heat-and-eat beans are made from a formula prepared by experts who came here to Boston, to the fountain of baked bean knowledge to learn just what recipe New England prefers. These new beans, baked in New England style, are now available in every part of New England. It is a small pea bean and has all the characteristics of the Puritan kitchen dish. Name of course, on request.

How to Obtain Onions for Seasoning

Plant one or two sprouting onions in a pot of good mold and place on the kitchen window-sill; shoots soon appear which may be removed for flavoring soups, etc., and others soon take their place; the onions continue sprouting a long time. Chives and parsley can also be grown in this way.

Butter Will Keep Lid Down on Boiling Pot

Drop a teaspoonful of butter into the water when boiling dry beans, or other starchy vegetables, to stop the annoyance of the lid of the pot jumping off, as it will otherwise do. The butter acts the same as oil on troubled waters and keeps it calm and manageable. If the edges of saucepan are well buttered, it also helps.

Washing of Gloves

THE problem of washing gloves so that they retain their pristine freshness just as long as they are wearable has been simplified to such an extent that it is not much more complicated than washing one's hands.

Harsh soap should, of course, never be used, nor should the water be hot. Luke warm water and a heavy suds are the only requirements.

An excellent soap for the purpose is that which comes in the form of tiny beads of soap, boxed conveniently so that they can be poured out easily. The beads of soap are so thin-walled that they dissolve almost instantly upon contact with water and the heavy suds is formed even as the beads are poured, so that it is easy to gauge just how much soap is necessary.

In these suds the gloved hands are dipped and the problem of washing the gloves is just as if the hands rather than the gloves were being cleansed. Gently work the suds into the tips and the soiled parts, being careful always to keep the gloves conformed to the hand. Then remove the gloves from the hands and squeeze the suds through them to clean the inside.

Rinse in two almost cool rinses, using about a teaspoonful of the beads of soap in each rinse water. Wipe as dry as possible with a turkish towel, patting out the moisture and giving special attention to double thicknesses and colored trimmings. Blow into the gloves to restore their shape, and finish the drying process slowly and away from the heat.

When dry, work the gloves slowly on to the hands again and mold into shape, being careful to adjust seams, just as when putting on a new pair of gloves for the first time.

Soap in this new form is marketed in good-sized packages which sell for few cents, for household use, as well as in bulk for larger consumption.

A.&P. Puts on Biggest Sale

IN announcing for this week what is thought to be the largest grocery sale ever held in this country, the A. & P. stores broadcast the further information that a reduction of 5 per cent has been effected in the price lists of all their foods.

Last year the A. & P. effected a similar reduction in food costs throughout New England and the total of 10 per cent lowering of fancy and staple food prices has put the organization in the van of grocery concerns bent on cutting the high cost of living.

In New England, the A. & P. is the largest retailer of fine groceries and quality meats. It employs more New England people, pays more local taxes, buys more New England products and pays more rent in this section than any other grocery concern.

The sale planned for this week will display many of the leading food products of the country marked down to the lowest possible prices and the list includes both fancy and staple foods and imported and domestic delicacies.

turing. The late Judge Gary said to this writer, who quoted him, in print, years ago, "when you buy other steel stocks, remember that United States Steel, if it chooses, can sell steel at a profit for less than it costs competitors to produce it."

Great and powerful are the great concerns that deal in money. Twenty-six New York trust companies made $71,552,000 last year.

More powerful is the industrial concern that produces goods. In three months General Motors earned a net profit of $70,000,000, or at the rate of $280,000,000 a year.

Cotton "pickers and strippers" replacing human fingers with machinery, are now working in Northwestern Texas.

This is good news. Prosperity for farmers depends on machinery, on doing with the earth's products what Ford, first, did with automobiles.

In the Gary rolling mill half a dozen men roll out steel rails that ten thousand could not have produced with old sledge hammer methods. No human hand touches the iron, until a tall young Scandinavian runs his keen blue eye along the finished rail and signals another man, who straightens it. Macadnes dig the ore, put it in ships, unload it, handle it, cold and hot.

Six men, some day, will run a 1000-acre farm and multiply its crops by ten. Don't worry about overproduction.

The INS and OUTS of FLAVOR

1 Sit down to a rich, juicy roast and, as you enjoy its flavor, ask this question: "Does roasting bring out the flavor of the meat—or does it cook flavor into it?"

2 While you're helping yourself to the mashed potatoes and cauliflower and Blue Label Ketchup we will give you the answer. Wonderful flavor can be cooked into even an ordinary roast.

3 Just a half a cup of Blue Label Ketchup added to the juices that ooze out, and basted over the roast from time to time will open your eyes to how flavor can be cooked in.

4 Even the cheaper cuts take on regular University Club quality—when Blue Label Ketchup goes into the kitchen and on the dinnertable. That's living in good taste!

"First choice, this one, second choice this."

Time after time the members of the famous "blindfold jury" indicated the sample of Blue Label Ketchup as "first choice."

Even the judges did not know which brand was chosen until the test completion.

New Gas Range

EVERY day we become better acquainted with the wonders of our new gas range in the Martha Lee Kitchen and more enthusiastic about it.

We haven't just decided which we value the most highly—the insulated oven, the automatic cook (oven heat control), or the wonderful indicator which burns up all garbage and wastes without smoke or smell.

The beauty of the automatic oven regulator is, of course, that you do not have to stay in or even near the kitchen when you are cooking. The regulator eliminates guess work and the pies, cakes, biscuits, cookies, etc., are just right every time.

Roasts of all kinds, of meat and fowl, rare, medium or well done, are cooked deliciously and without a single failure.

With the automatic oven regulator you can cook a whole meal in the oven at one time without any attention. In fact, you can go shopping or to the theater or calling for a period of three to five hours, returning to find your whole meal cooked perfectly, ready for serving. This really replaces a fireless cooker.

Then too, with this oven heat controller you can can all your fruit and vegetables in the oven, the new scientific way, and make fruit butters, preserves, marmalades, etc., in the oven without any stirring being necessary.

Then too, with the even heat control set very low, you can dry and sterilize your dishes in the oven, giving them a clean, polished surface. It also affords a warming closet of large capacity, and saves more gas than its cost per year—not to mention the saving in foods which otherwise might burn or scorch.

How to Straighten Aluminum Utensils

If an aluminum utensil is dented or warped, place it on a smooth surface or wooden block and pound it with a wooden mallet or potato masher. There is no danger of cracking or breaking the metal.

Aluminum does not need as much heat as other cooking utensils require.

Icings and Sauces

WHILE it is generally agreed that home-made cakes are much more delicious than "bought" ones, the general opinion on home made icings is not so complimentary. They may be flat from lack of flavor, or they may just happen to be unattractive looking. The first problem is easily solved by the addition of a trace of a reliable flavoring extract. Lemon, orange, almond and vanilla are prime favorites, while the more delicate flower flavors offer delightful variations. As for making them attractive—the most unassuming white icing can be made very elaborate looking by using a little pure vegetable paste coloring.

Color, too, can be used to emphasize the flavoring; for instance, a pale green tint will accentuate pistachio flavor or a pale pink will bring out a delicate rose flavor. You can also get some very pretty effects by combining different delicate shades, after the manner of French pastry icings.

Hoops and Cheesecloth for Cooling Dishes

When putting puddings or other dishes out of doors to cool, use a cover made of embroidery hoops of proper size with cheesecloth put in as a piece of embroidery is. The contents will be safe from dust while the air can circulate freely. The hoops keep the cloth from getting in the contents and weigh enough to keep it from blowing off.

Small Funnel Makes a Handy Twine Holder

A handy twine holder is a small funnel, suspended from the kitchen wall in a convenient place by the small ring attached to it; place the ball of twine inside and run the end of the string out through the funnel end.

This Will Give Soup a Rich, Creamy Taste

To give soup a rich, creamy taste, put in for each quart of soup a piece of cheese, about the size of a walnut, just before serving. Adding a little celery salt to potato soup gives it a delicious flavor. Grated cheese is fine for onion soup.

ENNEKING LANDSCAPES TO BE SHOWN AT 20TH CENTURY CLUB, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Smart Set Leaders to Pour Tea on March 29, Date of Exhibition

LANDSCAPES FROM THE BRUSH OF J. ELIOT ENNEKING AND tea from the hands of Mrs. Curtis Guild and a band of eminent Bostonians, is Thursday's fare, artistic and social, at the Twentieth Century Club. The lion of the occasion, albeit one that cares not to roar of his own achievements, is, of course, Mr. Enneking himself. Boston knows well his paintings, but is always freshly delighted when an Enneking show is on. Mystic, that somnolent town down in Connecticut, has been one Enneking field for painting. Another is the ancient seaport town Kipling immortalized in Captains Courageous, and artists without number have painted.

GLORIOUS AUTUMNAL COLOR spread across the White Mountains is yet another field wherein Mr. Enneking shines. But they will all be there, these landscapes of his, mellow dashes of sunlight and color, at the Twentieth Century Club for admirers to view until April 3. Mr. Enneking represents the best Boston tradition in art, being the son of the late John J. Enneking and himself a student of the Museum Art School, with memberships in the Art Club, the Copley Society, the Salmagundi Club in New York, the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts, the Springfield Art League, in fact, practically all New England has to offer in that regard. And of the American Federation of Artists.

AS TO THE TEACUP BRIGADE with Mrs. Guild its efficient leader, there are included a set socially distinguished—Mrs. Talbot Aldrich Miss Lotta A. Clark, Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Galen L. Stone, Mrs. Roger Wolcott and Mrs. Geoffrey C. Whitney. Invitations from Mr. Enneking are going out now, and the hours of the tea are as usual, for the afternoon rite, from 3 until 6.

THAT MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE ADORES STEPPING, EVEN TEMPORARILY, OUT OF THE formal manner that necessarily surrounds the comings and goings of the First Lady, is not to be denied. At least no one in Washington denies it. And everyone of those who saw her, had only an indulgent smile, as Mrs. Coolidge with her friend Mrs. Robert Hills, stepped from the White House limousine hatless, and proceeded into a photographer's. They both had just had their hair "done" and so with every wave in perfect shape they moved immediately from hairdresser to photographer, as would two ordinary mortals.

THEY WERE AS CAREFREE AS TWO SCHOOLGIRLS, THESE laughing "chummy" friends, intent on arriving with perfectly coiffed hair for their "sittings." Mrs. Hills is a White House guest, and young John Hills, an Amherst man, is also at the White House with young Mr. Coolidge. The young collegians, and some of their Washington friends also of the Amherst brand, joined the company for music and tea at a recent musicale at the White House. Necessarily a musicale, for an official company, within the sacred confines of the official mansion, must carry a certain formality. Absolute informality is not to be thought of.

BUT EVEN THIS OCCASION MRS. COOLIDGE MANAGED TO imbue with a tinge of informality. Mrs. Davis, Mrs. New and Mrs. Jardine were attractively arrayed to preside over the tea, the coffee and the chocolate urns. Mrs. Coolidge is not, of course, the only Washingtonian prominently in the public eye who feels this tang of spring and informality, and proceeds to benefit by it. One frequently meets the First Lady swinging along her favorite walk which is the promenade of many another—the cherry tree bordered rim of the Tidal Basin in Potomac Park. One also frequently sees the Minister of Austria, tall and handsome, enjoying this Washington beauty spot for his constitutional.

STRIDING ALONG WITH OPEN COAT, HIS CANE DESCRIBING circles in the air and his favorite collie at heel, Minister Prochaic is perfectly the figure one always imagines a minister or ambassador should present. Often Madame Prochnic, his attractive American wife, and the lovely elder daughter, accompany him. Mr. Constantin Brun, Minister of Denmark and a pioneer of the corps diplomatic, also selects the Cherry Tree walk, but he, unlike the Austrian representative, loves the bustle of F st., and so frequently tops off Potomac Park seclusion with a go among the shoppers. Tall and fine looking in his London clothes, he catches every eye.

FLORIDA'S SUNNY SANDS ARE BRINGING OUT SOME LATE season examples of bathing togs that are certainly eye-bedazzling. One society matron has been wearing an apricot suit of heavy silk. It had a V neck piped with a brilliant silk to match the bandanna that flaunted bright ends behind its wearer's ears. The cuffs of the trunks were bound with the print and there was a narrow sash and a kerchief for added jauntiness. Very likely this apricot creation will adorn the sands of Bailey's Beach this summer, when the elect of the millionaire colony disport in the ocean.

NEWPORT IS LIKELY TO have another smart Palm Beach apparition to feed its eyes on later. One slender matron appeared at the Bath and Tennis Club in a beach costume of rose and pink bound with bands of King's blue. The geometric design of the two-toned silk achieved a clever line and there was a tam-o' shanta like cap of King's blue. Blue also the rubber shoes with their straps and high heels. Very clever in accentuating the line of the ankle are these Palm Beach conceits and full well does Milady realize the fact.

SIXTH IN THE COURSE OF talks by the Rev. Mr. Perry at Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno's Beacon st. home is tomorrow's affair. The Rev. Mr. Perry winds up his London appearances before select companies of his devoted admirers by speaking of the life and accomplishments of that noted Irish leader, Charles Stewart Parnell the last of the "political failures" on which he has been discoursing this season. Mr. Perry's series of talks are perennially popular, and none more so than the present ones. A smart company will rustle into gilded chairs at Mrs. Fenno's for the occasion.

HUB SHIP RESCUES YOUTHS AT SEA

Seek Blonde Beauty Who Fleeces Gas Stations

SWINDLES VICTIMS IN NEW GAME

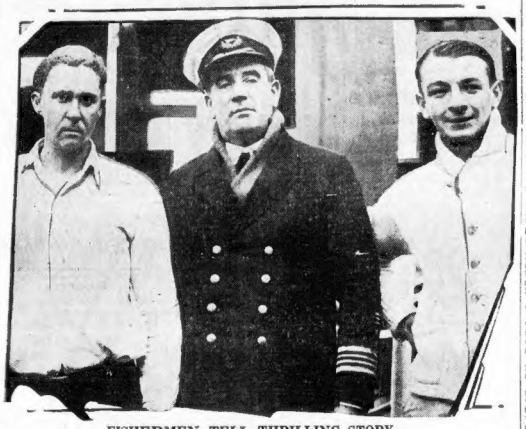
A stunning Titian-haired miss, about 23 years old, who has a flair for high-grade automobile body polishes, is being sought today by Lynn police following a week-end "clean-up" of gasoline stations in that city by her snappy short-change scheme.

Victims of her game informed police investigators that the girl, driving a high-powered roadster, pulls up at the gasoline station and purchases the best grade of body polish in stock.

In payment she tenders a $20 bill, but when the attendant has handed over the change she suddenly "discovers" the correct amount in her pocketbook. In the rather involved money transaction which follows, the quick-witted miss manages to keep a $10 bill out of the attendant's change and steps on the gas before he has had opportunity to notice the loss.

Four Western avenue gasoline station operators, enticed by the girl's fine saturday, described her to the police as "beautiful," clothed in black dress with white cuffs and collar, and wearing a black coat.

BATTLED DEATH FOR THREE DAYS



FISHERMEN TELL THRILLING STORY

Gilbert Allgaier of Daytona, Fla., Capt. William J. Mather of the San Gil and Derrell Peacock, also of Daytona, snapped on arrival of the San Gil in Boston. Allgaier and Peacock were rescued at sea from a crippled motor boat by Capt. Mather after they made a desperate fight for life. —Boston Evening American Staff Photo

YOUTHS FACE DEATH AT SEA FOR THREE DAYS

The tale of three terrible days and nights in a disabled powerboat 125 miles at sea, was told today by two youths brought into port by the United Fruit steamship San Gil.

The rescued mariners, Gilbert Allgaier, 23, and Derrell Peacock, 21, are residents of Daytona Beach, Fla. They were drifting from that point when the waving of Peacock's outer shirt drew the attention of Captain Wilson J. Mather, skipper of the San Gil.

Allgaier told the story of the rescue today, shuddering as he recalled the sinking of their power boat a few minutes after willing hands hauled them aboard the steamship.

"We started out last Sunday from Daytona Beach," he said, "all set for a deep-sea fishing trip in the power boat. Things went fine until the sea started to kick up when we were 25 miles out.

AT MERCY OF SEAS.

"That ended our pleasure trip, and we decided to head for shore. In turning we were horror-stricken to see a plank in the starboard bow give way and the sea rush in.

"Derrell ripped off his outer shirt, partly stuffed the break and we started bailing.

"The water kept rushing in, though, nearly ruining our provisions. After a while we just took turns at bailing. I thought my back would break in the end. It was awful.

"Our engine would work, somewhat faulty of course, but we couldn't spare the time from bailing to repair it.

"Three days and three awful nights sent our courage slipping fast. At the point when we thought both must drop from exhaustion, the good San Gil loomed up in the distance.

"We started waving and you can bet it was a welcome sight to us when the nose of that wade bow turned in our direction.

"They put out a boat and here we are. Frankly I think another hour would have finished us."

WILL RETURN BY TRAIN.

Allgaier is a native of Evansville, Ind., but moved with his folks to Daytona four years ago. He is married six years and his chief concern today was to get back to the Belvar Hotel where his young wife is ill.

Young Peacock is single and has lived at the beach since childhood. The fathers of both are prominent in business activities of the section.

Hatless and coatless the pair left the steamship to outfit themselves for the train ride home. Their folks had previously been notified by the company that they were safe and en route to this port. They plan to take the federal express for the South tonight.

Both men, now completely recovered from their experience, gave highest of praise to Capt. Mather and the crew of the San Gil.

"PHANTOM" BROKER TO FACE TRIAL APRIL 2

John F. Mullin, boy broker, known as the "Phantom of the Telephone," appeared in Municipal Court today where one complaint against him was dismissed and trial of four others, charging larceny of $20,000 from three New Bedford school teachers, was continued to April 2.

Great Story on Life; Gripping as a Novel; Fascinating as a Movie

CHAPTER 36

IS IT in our very nature to hate our enemies, impossible to love them? Why is the very cornerstone of Christ's teachings so rarely taken literally? James thinks those "swayed by it might well seem superhuman beings. Their life would be morally different from the lives of other men, and there is no saying what the effects might be; they might conceivably transform the world."

They might indeed.

As the world is, hate is given freer rein. Recently it reigned; and each half of the world besought the same God to help it kill the other half. We can hate enough to kill, but killing no longer solves problems, nor hating an enemy convert one.

Fear is old stuff, out of date. It should be thrown off with our swaddling clothes. And yet it probably plays a greater part than hope in the daily lives of most men and women. Fears are played upon by all sorts of propagandists for political, social and religious purposes. Fear of hell-fire is supposed to lead to love of heaven; fear of "aliens, foreigners" to hatred of aliens and so to the closing of the doors. And the only reason this nation could not be led to hate Germany as France did was because we could not be made to feel the fear of Germany as France did.

But for most of us life is only neat and the body raiment. Same reaction system, same environment; stereotyped behavior because our world stands still. And an enormously valuable emotional reservoir of energy, capable of moving mountains and giving all life a joy-ride, is expended in hating those we envy and kicking against the pricks or in fleeing in terror from our shadows because we cannot shake them off.

And so it is that an instinctive emotional endowment rooted deep in the body of life and inherent in man and mammals and all living beings that meet dangerous situations with complex mechanisms which must function as a unit and without warning, becomes personal and individual. The organization of that endowment into specific fears and hates and general attitudes favoring negative and positive responses begins the day we are born.

"WHEN I was a child, I spake as a child. I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things." Some childish things we do put away, and we do forget most of the rag dolls, tin soldiers, and mud pies; but we get our start in childhood for much of our bent and most of our set. We do not put away our nature. Paul was an exception.

We are afraid of the dark, of little green worms, of hundreds of things. And get emotionally excited about them. Some react to a cabbage worm as they would to a wild elephant or to a mouse; and are as nearly scared to death as life lets them. It is no merit of their own that they have not died of fright a thousand times.

We are not born that way. The newborn sets up a fear reaction only to fearful stimuli; the bang of a door, being dropped, a sudden pain

Says 'Bye Bye' to Cop; Then Goodnight to $40

Officer Timothy J. Callahan of the East Cambridge station, testifying today in Cambridge district court when he whistled at Ernest Cavazzoni of Somerville for driving to the left of a street car, Cavazzoni shouted:

"Bye, bye, Old Top. See you later."

"All right, but not much later," Callahan replied, whereupon he commandeered a passing machine and captured Cavazzoni.

The autoist pleaded guilty to refusing to stop on signal, for which he was fined $25; going to the left of a street car, which drew $10, and operating without a license, which cost him $5, the fines being imposed by Judge Arthur P. Stone.

Francis M. Maguire of Boston pleaded guilty to drunkenness, a charge preferred by Capt. Timothy F. Leahy. The captain said Maguire had walked into the police station and demanded rest. Maguire said someone had given him a drink of poison and he believed he had every right to go to a police station for rest. Judge Stone placed the case on file.

SEIZES JUDGE'S CAR TO CHASE FLEEING BOY

Judge Edward J. Counihan, Jr., participated in a thrilling ride while on his way to the Cambridge courts today when Patrolman Patrick J. Kelleher of the East Cambridge police commandeered his automobile to capture an alleged auto violator at gunpoint.

Albert Stynest, 13, was arrested after three shots were fired by the officer. He is charged with operating without a license, failing to stop at the signal of a traffic officer and using a wrong number plate on his machine.

Kelleher, patrolling Cambridge st., saw the car driven by Stynest approach at a fast clip, but was forced to jump aside when he raised his hand to signal the driver to stop.

As the youth swept past, Kelleher commandeered the automobile of Judge Counihan passing at the time and chased the speeder to Hardin and Main streets, where he commandeered another machine and gave chase to Memorial drive.

Near Kendall sq. the progress of Stynest was stopped by a truck backing across Main st., allowing Kelleher to approach near enough to draw his gun on the youth and cause his surrender.

NAMES SCHOLARSHIP FOR DEAD EVERETT TEACHER

A scholarship in memory of a former Everett school teacher, Myra Fuller Weed, who died while doing missionary work in China, was provided for in the will of Attorney Dudley P. Bailey of Everett, filed today in Middlesex Probate Court. He left $900 to Colby College, Waterville, Me., to found two scholarships, one to be named the Adelaid Potter Bailey Scholarship and the other the Myra Fuller Weed scholarship. The testator's law and miscellaneous library, except that part of it otherwise disposed of, is to go to Colby College. All of the library that has to do with the State of Maine is left to the town of Munson, Me. The remainder of the estate is to be divided between Colby College and Baptist organizations.

HEAD OF CLOSED BANK APPEARS IN HUB COURT

Andrea DiTerzo, head of the Hanover st. private bank closed by Bank Commissioner Roy A. Hovey, appeared in Municipal Court today on four complaints charging misappropriation of funds and failing to make proper reports.

At the request of his counsel, Attorney Charles Hill, the case was postponed to April 4, when it is expected the bank examiners will have the books in condition to discuss of the case.

CITY SHUTS OFF WATER FROM 4 FAMILIES

For one week four Dorchester families, including 18 children, have been without water in their homes, due to non-payment of the 1927 water bill, according to the city.

"Just an oversight that the bill was overlooked," explained attorneys, said to be agents for the owner, in promising the city payment today.

Zenus Preston of 39 Freeport st., whose youngest child is only three weeks old, carried 42 quarts of water from a neighbor's house yesterday; an average day. The families of John Clark, Robert McLaughlin and William Ochs, living alongside the Prestons, have resorted to the same means of getting water.

The water was shut off, it was learned today, by the Dorchester yard of the water department last Tuesday. It was to have been done Monday, but the workman sent to do it found all the women washing and "had a heart."

Although it was said at the office of the attorneys that the bill was going to be paid, the water was still shut off today.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. Then you become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irrited, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DYNAMITE RIVER FOR SMITH GIRL

Northampton, March 26—At the request of the family of Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College girl, the Connecticut river below the Hadley bridge, will be dynamited in a few days.

This request was made to State Detective Joseph V. Daly on the supposition that, because of the student's long absence without any trace having been found, she is dead.

In making the announcement of dynamiting plans, Detective Daly said that it will be done as soon as the river is clear of the ice, which, in his opinion, will doubtless be some time this week.

New York, March 26—Foul play is seen by the police in the death of Gordon Hampson, famous concert pianist, who died at St. Luke's Hospital here, victim of embolism, which set in after his jaw had been broken, he said, by a blow struck him as he entered his bachelor quarters at 143 West 77th st.

Police are trying to learn whether or not Hampson was attacked by thugs while on his way home, or got into a fight with an acquaintance. No money or valuables were missing, apparently, when they searched his apartment.

NEELY BRANDS HOOVER "DODGER" ON RUM ISSUE

American Leads in News Beats Again

THE spectacular airplane crash at Quincy, Saturday, was followed by an equally spectacular scoop by the Boston Evening American, which, besides telling first of the accident, printed exclusive photographs.

These photographs told the story as no words could. No need for American readers to join the throng that motored to the scene.

In accordance with its custom, this newspaper set the pace for its contemporaries last week.

An exclusive story of the final messages of victims in the 84 disaster appeared in the American, and on the same day the first message was exclusively printed by this paper.

The American ran exclusive pictures of victims of the big Dorchester fire, the first story on the illness and retirement from the stage of Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, famous actress; an exclusive story of the sentencing of Charlie Buckley, and a beat on the marriage of Mrs. E. Pierpont Edwards, society dowager, to her butler.

For news when it is news read the Boston Evening American.

ASKS NEW TRIAL FOR BUCKLEY ON POINTS

Attorney George F. Ellsworth, counsel for Joseph Foster Buckley, sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of Grace Mills of Wal them, today filed with the Supreme Court an appeal from the decision of Middlesex Superior Court denying a new trial.

The court has set April 2 as the date on which the evidence will be examined, and Ellsworth has 10 days thereafter in which to file his assignment of errors. He claims proper evidence was excluded, improper evidence was admitted and the question of jurisdiction is also debatable.

Braves Have Several Important Engagements Before Opening Game With Giants

By NICK FLATLEY

Fort Myers, March 26—The trek northward has started, and the Boston Braves will be a group of very industrious young athletes before they reach New York on April 11 to open the National League season with the New York Giants on the Polo Grounds.

The Tribe has several important dates to fill before the training season closes, and today and tomorrow they mingle with Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics.

From this bobbing burg the Braves hop to Miami and West Palm Beach, where they will collide with Brooklyn and its string of great pitchers.

During the latter of decades the boys will then start hitting the main stride, going in a west working by easy stages into splendid old shape. New York. This Southern trip, where a dime is scarcer than ice cream in the Far North, will really be the test of the weather we are liable to have at ease any time now, and if the team has to shift back to the cage" one added Dwight, who is regarded as quite a weather prophet.

With his team outdoors, Mitchell will be able to get a line on his outfield for the first time. The facilities of the new cage prevent outfield practice, and the average hours have been during most on ground-rers since the squad came out four weeks ago.

Right now, Capt. Howie Burns is the only fly chaser sure of his berth, for all the centerfield race is between Mitchell and Wilson for the post, with Jones, Gordon Brown, Ken Cuddy and probably Bill Lobert battling it out for the other two posts.

Centre a Framingham boy, is the fastest of the quartet and a quite a clever player. He played on the second team last spring, his work batting out of keeping him off the varsity squad.

Mitchell is well aware of his limited outfield timber and the move of the veteran coach in the next few days will be carefully watched. Provided Lee Wolfe return to left field with Capt. Burns and Crotty rounding out the trio.

HARVARD SQUAD IS TO WORK OUTDOORS

Fred Mitchell' Harvard's baseball coach, has contracted spring fever.

Not that the popular Crimson mentor is confined to his bed, but that Mitch has become a victim of the unexpected warm weather of the weekend is the implication here referred to. The recent warm spell put the new Harvard baseball cage in Dutch, for Fred has been lured by Mother Nature and from now on he will conduct his practice sessions on the open air.

"I have the freshman diamond in good ape and I believe that I can Mitchell can use that diamond for a stage to-morrow," said Mitch this morning. "But do not be too sure of the weather we are liable to have a cold spell any time now and if so team will have to shift back to the cage" concluded Dwight, who is regarded as quite a weather prophet.

With his team outdoors, Mitchell will be able to get a line on his outfield for the first time. The facilities of the new cage prevent outfield practice, and the average hours have been during most on ground-rers since the squad came out four weeks ago.

Right now, Capt. Howie Burns is the only fly chaser sure of his berth, for all the centerfield race is between Mitchell and Wilson for the post, with Jones, Gordon Brown, Ken Cuddy and probably Bill Lobert battling it out for the other two posts.

50 RIOTERS ARRESTED IN BATTLE

De La Salle Rooters Give the Title-Winning Five a Red-Hot Reception

Joliet, Ill., March 26 (INS)—Three persons were injured, numerous traffic accidents occurred and several scores of arrests were made here when police attempted to quell a riotous celebration which raged through the night following the winning of the national Catholic high school basketball championship by De Salle high of Joliet.

B. U. PLAYERS AT WALPOLE ST.

Coach George Gra started outdoor practice for his Boston University baseball squad at Walpole grounds today. The Terrier men for hopes to be able to keep his team outdoors for the next two weeks. In order to have a well-developed nine for the game with Harvard a week from Saturday.

The greater part of the squad who has been practicing indoors is composed of veterans. Lots of spirit presented a general call, but this afternoon every ball player in the University will be on hand.

All new candidates were carefully watched, and if any boys of the newcomers show any batting strength they are certain to make the varsity squad.

German Athletes Go to 'Olympic' School

Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, March 26 (AP) — German athletes today started to school to learn the best methods of capturing honors at the forthcoming Olympic games.

Several special training courses sponsored by the German board for light athletics were begun here to give Olympic candidates and their trainers a thorough schooling in middle and long-distance running, high jumping, Marathon running, broad jumping, petathlon events, javelin hurling, sprinting and hurdling and women's sports.

The athletic school, which will run May 15, is being held in the Kronberg Taunus stadium, which offers one of the best training sites in Europe. Another school of the same kind will be held in Berlin in July, especially at Grunau near Karlsruhe.

The courses are planned with one to prepare to the Olympic requirements. Thereby final, it is said, will be put on the training of men and women who will uphold the German athletic fame, the largest body of athletes that will be sent to Amsterdam by any country.

The two trainers are allowing each athlete to develop an individuality. Where team work is required, they are developing in the athlete a spirit of cooperation and a knowledge of the individual to the team work. This is especially true in the case of relay runners.

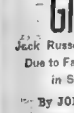
RED SOX TO BATTLE GIANTS

Jack Russell and Ed Morris Due to Face McGraw Clan in South Today

By JOE CASHMAN

Augusta, Ga., March 26—The Red Sox entered upon the final lap of their spring training grind today when they opened a ten-day stay here by resuming hostilities with the Giants.

Jack Russell and Ed Morris were Manager Hugh Carrigan's mound selections to start the team off right in these parts by turning back the National Leaguers.



Joe Cashman

If they succeed, the Sox will stand a very good chance of getting even for the two setbacks handed them by the Giants in New Yorkers in Henderson for the two games will meet in more contests and Blackburn, Stillwell and Myatt, three of the best of the Fenway flingers, will work.

The entire Fenway squad is in excellent shape after the trip from Bradenton, via Savannah, and with a fair share of the breaks ought to make it three straight for the Giants. In the latter respect, however, it is up to walk off with the short end and their margin of victory in each was but a single run.

The weather is much cooler here than at Bradenton and Jack Curran is a mighty delighted over the change, believing that they will be able to play much better ball in this climate.

NO GAMES FOR WEEK

The only thing that is worrying them is that after tomorrow's fray with the Giants, there is no more opposition in sight until they play a Columbus a week from Saturday.

They needn't lose any sleep over that, though, for if Manager Carrigan feels that they are in need of work, games will be booked with the Atlanta club.

Bill hasn't decided yet whether his charges would benefit more by returning for a time to daily workouts and scrub games or by continuing to play exhibition tilts.

He is said to vote in favor of games if any major league opposition was available, as he is very anxious to keep sending his men against minor league outfits as those in most instances are a big help in the development of big leaguers and there is always the danger of a star being injured.

The Sox have been very fortunate in this latter respect, the only hurt, Phil Todt being the only player who has suffered any more than a charley horse or a stiff spraln and the first named injured knee is in a fair way to speedily that he should be able to resume action very soon.

So Carrigan, with all but one of his charges in shape for strength and spirit, isn't going to take any chances by sending them into this more competition than he has seen absolutely necessary for their good.

Bill deserves a lot of credit for the way his athletes have developed this spring, every one being in shape.

11 PITCHERS IN SHAPE

There are 11 flingers in camp, eleven of whom are in such fine shape that they could work nine innings at this early date and give a very good account of themselves each and every time.

The fielders, too, are coming along in excellent shape and have got the necessary pep into their legs to enable them to go to it in a business like way.

The team as a whole is in good condition and it bids fair to go places in the campaign.

NOVA SCOTIA HAS ENTRY FOR B. A. A. MARATHON

ROY MITCHELL AND TASSIN ON ARGONNE CARD

Supporting the 10-round heavyweight battle between Roberto Roberi, Italian champion, and Ted Sandberg, German title holder, the Argonne A. A. has clinched another [illegible] which will provide two of the best ring battles of the season at Mechanics Building, Monday evening, April 2.

Andy Tassin, light heavyweight [illegible] of Lynn, has signed articles to clash with Roy Mitchell of Hartford in the second 10-rounder, and the event should prove equally as fast as the main attraction.

It was decided last night that Mitchell [illegible] was fair to fight [illegible] to meet Sandwina, will be reinstated by the commission when explanations are offered.

Tassin has been the victim of a managerial change, which for a time threatened to wreck his future, but this was straightened out yesterday when Jack Kearns, who has a stable mate of Roberti, Doc Bagley, who has handled Roberti's business affairs since coming to this country, will now handle the managerial end for Tassin.

Under the direction of Bagley, it is expected that Tassin will fight his way to the top. He has been set to [illegible] five out of six struggles since coming to this country, and has scored four knockouts.

Mack has made arrangements with Bagley to arrive in the Hub this week to [illegible] has finished [illegible] to [illegible] here. MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

JESS MacMahon, Tex Rickard's matchmaker, has given Mr. Boston the low down on the very much muddled up heavyweight situation.

"I'll give you the real facts without any bunk," said MacMahon. "Nobody has yet been selected as Gene Tunney's opponent. Sharkey, Risko and Heeney have qualified as challengers with the New York Boxing Commission, but Rickard and Tunney have failed to agree on who shall be the challenger.

"There's no secret of the fact that Tunney prefers Heeney. Tom has a wide open style and is easy to hit. Tunney figures he would be more certain of defeating Heeney than he would of getting the nod over Sharkey or Risko.

"Charley Harvey, Heeney's manager, demands a Tunney bout and won't consider anything else. I have tried to match Risko with Heeney, but Harvey won't take the bout. He thinks he is going to maneuver Heeney into the title shot direct on account of Tunney's attitude in regard to the New Zealand heavyweight.

"I don't intend to let Tunney and Rickard pass up Risko. I'll have something to say on this matter. Unless Heeney first beats Risko, I shall see that he won't get the title shot.

"Risko is a better fighter than most people give him credit for being. He engaged in 23 bouts last year which is the real reason for his improvement. Fighters rust out when inactive.

"I HAVE always thought that Sharkey was the class of the contenders, but he failed to come up to expectations in his bouts with Heeney and Risko. In the Heeney bout, I felt Sharkey was entitled to the decision, but I didn't think any injustice was done him when Risko was declared the winner in his recent match with the Boston contender.

"With the heavyweight situation still in a muddle, Sharkey can get back into the picture by beating Delaney out of the picture. If he should stop Delaney, he wouldn't get the Tunney match direct. He would still have Risko, and possibly Heeney, blocking his path

"I believe the trouble with Sharkey has been lack of fighting. He hasn't been active enough. Now that he has two fights under his belt, he may hit his former stride.

"IN regard to Dempsey, you know as much about his plans as I do. Just now he says he has quit the game for good. He made similar statements a year ago and as yet came back to fight Sharkey and Tunney.

"Dempsey is one of those fellows who changes his mind over night. You may yet find him in there batting Tunney this year

"There will be only one title fight this year, and that one in September. Rickard first got Tunney to consent to have the big shot put back until July. Now the tentative date is in September

"I think that time there should be a real champion. If Paulino had an American manager, he would be the leading contender. He has plenty of color and fighting ability but has been managed very poorly

"I believe that Tunney will draw a million dollar gate no matter whom his opponent is. A worst of a heavyweight champion fights is like the first game of a world's series. You cannot keep the public away.

"If Risko gets the shot, I think he will give a good account of himself. He is one of those fellows who always beats the bird whom they say is going to give him a shellacking. This happened in his bouts with Delaney, Paulino and Sharkey.

"My personal heavyweight program calls for Sharkey to meet Delaney on April 30 provided I can come to financial terms with Johnny Buckley and Joe Jacobs. All conditions for the match have been agreed upon other than the amount of money which will be paid to the rival heavyweights. The Garden is like other Wall Street corporations. It doesn't believe in giving away all of the money.

"I shall then try to match Risko and Heeney. The victor of this bout would meet Sharkey if the latter scores an impressivewin over Delaney. Otherwise there would be one less elimination leading up to the big shot with Tunney."

FULLER AND SUGGS MEET

he would have the New Bedford warrior examined before the bout to see if he has his body smeared with encaunut butter. Rip claims Sugrs has often used cocaunut butter on his body and that this makes it impossible for punches to score with their proper effect.

I have seen Suggs in all of his Boston bouts and I have never known him to use cocaunut butter or to employ any improper practices in the ring. He has always impressed me as being a fair performer.

There will also be dressing room arguments tonight over bandages and tape.

WITH memories of the poor preliminary card at the Mollo-Haikina bout still fresh in his mind Tom Goodwin has arranged a preliminary offering which promises to be one of the best ever loosed for Boston.

The eight pound semifinal will bring together Johnny Irish Wilson, [illegible] Red Chapman of Newport and Johnny Bragg.

Another eight-session will [illegible] Jack Dunn of Revere and Jimmy Armata White of New York. In a recent tussle at Lynn, Jessie won the decision after ten rounds of battling.

Jackie Donahue of South Boston will meet some red hot opposition when he collides with Murray Layland of New York.

Two welterweight bouts have been arranged. George Dupree of Somerville, La pointe of Kansas City will tackle Frankie Pino of Cambridge, while Johnny Dundee of Brooklyn will box Irish Patsy Cline of Chelsea.

The show will be opened with a three-round setto between Leo Morrissey of Watertown and Red O'Brien of Lowell.

Consistency Needed in Golf—Mrs. Horn

By MIRIAM BURNS HORN
Women's National Golf Champion

PERHAPS the most important advice to the beginner in golf is this idea of consistency. That is, the necessity of adopting one method and adhering to that. The more experienced golfers have one thing in common. They have a fixed method.

They may accomplish their shots in different ways; but whatever the particular ways are, they are their own individualities, and they do not alter them, because someone suggests something different.

Methods are developed and acquired through experience. After a time a person hits upon a good method he usually can think his way out of difficulties without more than an occasional visit to a professional.

The trouble with most persons is their inability to stick to the same principle for any length of time.

They are always ready to advise from one instructor, follow it for a few days, take a few more lessons and then try it again with little apparent success, then change over to another person. It is the constant change which fails to bring success.

GOOD golf is the result of a good swing; and a good swing comes from trained muscles, developed that they perform their work with no conscious directing on the part of the individual.

Changing from one instructor to the next, and trying to assimilate each one's points, when one has no foundation on which to base the learning, is asking too much of anyone.

It is the same as eating a full 10 course dinner, then trying to eat again in an hour. The system is not ready for it. Nature will rebel in the form of illness.

Everything will be in a perfect mould. Therefore remember, take one point at a time. Practice that until it becomes a habit. Do not think, because you are not improving as fast as you might like to that the professional is to blame. Sometimes ingrained players even change the style.

DON'T get discouraged. Golf is a game of patience and nerve. Stick to one thing, forever, if necessary. Undoubtedly the "pro" if he is a good one with much experience, knows what is best for you and is giving you the proper instruction. Practice diligently, and be consistent in your labors.

TUNNEY DEFENDS BOXERS

Champion Says Fighters Earn Every Penny Paid Them; Sometimes Underpaid

By GENE TUNNEY,
World's Heavyweight Champion.

"You fellows earn your money pretty easily. Twenty or thirty minutes of actual boxing and you've made more than the average successful man makes in a year." This stock joke was repeated to me the other day, for the several hundredth time, by a friend with the best of intentions.

"Well," I replied, "just how much would you take to spend one round in the ring with any one of the heavier boxers that you could name?"

"No, thank you. Not at any price," he answered quickly and that ended that discussion. But still it appears that the general public clings to the idea that enormous amounts of soft money are graded by boxers with practically no effort. It may look that way on paper, but it doesn't work out in actual figures.

In the first place America is not a country of soft money. It is a country that gets its money's worth or knows the reason why. If an American wants a new car, he'll look long or a pile to save for a ringside seat. He's long on the pass-it-up but he thinks it's worth time or kick it above.

In the second place the purses that are paid to boxers are hard-earned money when it comes to be a professional boxer. I am overwell for greater than the average laborer or banker or any other business man.

First, the earnings of a boxer, even though he work in two or three months' full of 10 or 15 minutes of actual fighting, are not alone for the time he devotes to the game. They are the result of years of training, sacrifice and self-denial. They are based upon the energy of trying to keep in condition through long periods when there are no fights in sight, and upon the ability to judge the strength of other fighters.

The boxer must be paid, too, for abandoning all other interests for years before he appears in the prize ring and for the years after he is no longer fit for prize fighting. If the public will be so kind as to support the salary of an opera star for her first performance after she has spent years in preparation to fit us to the world something it desires.

NIGHT after night in every city of any size in the United States, fans are crowding clubs and halls to attend boxing matches. They attend in such numbers that receipts at the heavyweight championship affairs are dwarfed in comparison.

And these hundreds of boys appearing on the programs are in variably underpaid, for comparative problems are in direct as those of a heavyweight champion.

Likewise if the sums involved in a big championship bout seem large it is because the actual amount of money spent on boxing the year around is invisible.

During the past year there have been but few bouts of tremendous interest in New York, yet the taxes on the shows given by 33 clubs in the state amounted to nearly $300,000 which at 10 per cent, would mean that New York fans spent $3,000,000 on local fights.

If one State spends that much upon the sport, then the amount of money involved in an affair of world interest is astonishingly modest.

HIS FAITHFUL SERVICE

May be rewarded this spring at Boston College if Dick Morrisey makes a regular berth in the varsity outfield. Morrisey has been toiling for three years trying to land an outfield berth. Coach Hugh Duffy is giving the lad plenty of chance to develop and he may be seen patrolling one of the outer gardens.

Duffy May Reward Morrisey at B. C.

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

After three years of struggling it seems as though Dick Morrisey's one ambition is going to be realized. Hard work and a never-say-die spirit are due to win for Morrisey his varsity insignia with the Boston College ball team this spring.

Dick's career at the Heights would be a fitting theme for another Horatio Alger novel. Not a born ball player, yet one loving the national pastime, he kept at the grind and has forged steadily ahead.

He was born in Roxbury, in the ... side district, where baseball is a life essential. If a kid couldn't play ball there wasn't much joy in living. Needless to say Dick got a big kick out of life. He was one of the best sandlotters in the community and could always be found on the Roxbury playgrounds tossing a ball around in every spare moment he had.

Time came for Dick to enter high school. The boys in Roxbury had heard of a small prep school in Northeast, Pa. from Fritz Corrigan. Roseoll was payed preach a ly the year round at St. Mary's and that was the only needed incentive.

PLAYED WITH FORE RIVER

Six young men, Morrisey included, left early in September for Northeast, which is in the heart of the coal mine region, 50 miles from Erie, headed by Corrigan. Fritz is well known in semi-pro ball circles around the Hub. He started at St. Mary's after graduating from St. Mary's and then patrolled the outfield for a few years of the Tail League.

Morrisey and his friends started playing ball for St. Mary's in their first year. Dick covered the first base position and proved a powerful batter. Each year an improvement was noted until St. Mary's was soon rated as the best prep school team in the anthracite region.

Dick spent six years at the Penn school. After finishing his high school term of four years he entered a prep school course of two more. Some wonderful ball players have been turned out at St. Mary's and the professional scouts spend a lot of time there.

But the school is a preparatory institution for the seminary and St. Mary's had not had any stars in the big leagues, although many of its students could have made the grade without a great deal of trouble.

Morrisey entered B. C. in 1923. He reported for the nine in his freshman year under Coach Jack Slattery. A bit handicapped by backwardness developed in his six years at St. Mary's, Dick found the test a bit too much. He was chopped off the squad in an early cut.

The next spring, however, Morrisey stayed with the squad as a lowly sub. He didn't get into any of the games. In fact, he didn't even come close. Yet this could not discourage him. He kept on trying.

Junior year came and with it another chance to make good. Slattery noticed Morrisey's determination and gave him every possible bit of attention. Morrisey drunk in Slattery's advice with great eagerness and the results were soon noticed.

SHOULD MAKE VARSITY

He was rated as a fair ... but once again spent the season on the bench. It will be remembered that B. C. has a champion nine last spring, with outfielders of Dinny McNamara's class. So it's easy to see why Morrisey could not break into the limelight.

Now Morrisey is a senior. It's his last chance to play for B. C., and he has been working like a Trojan to gain this honor. Coach Duffy has been watching him, and thinks Morrisey's work is worthy of some reward.

But the same situation prevails. There are experienced men trying for the B. C. outfield, and the reasoning gained in former campaigns puts them far ahead of Dick. Coach Duffy has tried Morrisey in the outfield and now he has him back on first base.

Boston College gets outdoors this week, and Morrisey's batting average is due to come to his assistance. If same should be just on the roll of ... Duffy has had a chance to see him working at the plate.

Morrisey's case is similar to those told of many collegiate athletes. One of the unsung heroes who aid in the development of the team, yet get no credit for it. All Morrisey's teammates and friends will be happy if they see his ambition realized this spring.

Blindfolded . . . in scientific test of leading Cigarettes, James Montgomery Flagg selects OLD GOLD

After this test, Mr. Flagg wrote:

"Most of us smoke names and think we are smoking cigarettes! The blindfold test proved that to me. It proved also that it is difficult to tell one cigarette from another . . . except in the case of OLD GOLD. I spotted that . . . it suited me best even blindfolded. In fact, the man who said 'not a cough in a carload' knew whereof he spoke . . . It's the smoothness that identifies OLD GOLD. It needs no other trade mark."

How Test Was Made

Subject was blindfolded, and, in the presence of two responsible witnesses, was given one each of the four leading cigarettes to smoke . . . To clear the taste . . . coffee was served before each cigarette.

Mr. Flagg was entirely unaware of the identity of these cigarettes during test. After smoking the four cigarettes, Mr. Flagg was asked to designate by number his choice . . . He promptly replied, "Number 2," which was OLD GOLD.

First came a Potage Saint Germain, which I believe means, to prepare this for four ounces of eight tablespoons of sausage meat was placed in the bottom of a heavy aluminum kettle with two ounces of chopped salt pork and one large minced onion. "Jerry" by ELENORE MEHERIN AUTHOR of "CHICKIE"

A Story of Mad Moonlight Kisses and a Wonderful Young Girl

CHAPTER 48

"WHY should Mary Eunice back him?" asked Jerry with sharp matter-of-factness. 'What's the matter with his uncle?"

"He's tied up with some big deal so I understand. That's why Paul has gone away and sent Saxon back here. It's quiet in town so Saxon has time to go out for this prize. If he wins it, his fortune is made."

"Did Mary Eunice tell you all this, Sylvia?"

"Not in so many words. But she's been after John to urge Saxon to enter the competition. But John knew Saxon didn't have the necessary money. Anyway, men mind their own business.

"Then one day Mary came for a sitting. She was exceedingly spiffed and began to boast. She got quite sentimental and said she was going to make Saxon the greatest architect in the country. He had the stuff and she was going to bring it out. The winning of the Methuen prize would be the beginning of it. 'I've finally won him over to that,' she said. 'I'm making him. A girl can do anything she wants with a man when he's mad for her.'"

"Y-e-s-s-s, Sylvia, that Saxon will take more from Mary Eunice?"

"Don't say it so softly. I think Mary Eunice is going to finance him. And he thinks it a stretch business proposition and probably points on paying interest. In a dozen ways he can justify himself. He's been aching to enter this competition. Months ago, while you were away he was planning on it. He tried to get Paul interested. But Paul was too heavily involved in other matters. Saxon told John he had a measle of a plan and was still to develop it. So as far as the world of you and I know, it's just a matter of a few months. Mary Eunice is a fool to almost any man—for the chance."

"Then at that, I don't think Saxon would have taken Mary Eunice's proposition unless he cared a bit for her. In that case he wouldn't be free to offer honest love to any one else. And she has a right to take him if she would have."

"I'm sure he's not engaged to her," said Jerry slowly; "sure of it."

"He must be. Or he couldn't be so blind as to involve himself in a compromising position with a girl like Mary Eunice. He knows she's in love with him. He'd certainly be aware of all the nasty angles to an affair of this kind.

"Suppose he doesn't win the prize? And is obligated to her for thousands of dollars? She'd taunt him about it. She'd hold it over him like a whip. She'd force him to anything she wanted. And if he married her then after taking this money, don't you think Saxon would despise that all out?"

"No," said Jerry slowly, "he wouldn't. You're presuming that men see through an attractive woman like a woman does. You're discounting entirely Mary's charm. Do you think Saxon thinks her a joker? A poser? An adventuress out to get him?"

"Why, he thinks her a sweet, lovable, very young girl wrongly treated by a man who married her."

"And he believes that she's honestly and unselfishly interested in his future. And he can borrow money as a loan on a purely business basis—take it from Mary Eunice with no more grimace than he would take it from a bank."

"Then" said Sylvia, shortly, "seemingly you'll not tell him."

"And you think that someone should be I?"

"Yes! At any rate," said Sylvia, swinging along with her proud virile air of a young goddess, "if I loved a man, I'd fling my own pride to the winds and save him from a mess like this is sure to be. A worse mess if he's really infatuated and plans on marrying her.

"If I loved a man and had as much as you've got, I'd save him from that, Jerry. I wouldn't let Mary Eunice Pennings Bothwell marry Saxon Rhodes."

"I suppose about a million women since Eve, Sylvia, have schemed on saving men they wanted for themselves. I've never heard of one succeeding and leaving behind her the winning method of attack. Have you—"

"Think of all the wives who see their men gradually slipping from them. Think of all the girls who are standing by while the man they love goes to another and an unworthy other.

"How many women in Boston alone, do you suppose, lay awake last night and the night before that, praying and wondering how to outwit the other woman?"

"Some of them succeed," said Sylvia quietly. "When they've intelligence enough to win, they've humor and kindness enough to keep quiet about it

"So there's no record telling of the victory. I wouldn't let Mary Pennings take the man I wanted from me. And that's flat!"

"A bold, thrilling way to feel about it," said Jerry with fine calmness. "But it doesn't work. And for your pains, you'd be told to quit pulling the mama-stuff. And you'd only infuriate your man and plunge him headlong to the soothing acquiescent woman's arms."

"There are ways and ways of saying the grass is green," Sylvia went on stubbornly, the sharp black, black brows closed over her nose. "One way you say it the man will see it red—another than red. I'd find the other way."

"What is the other way?" thought Jerry, lying awake that night and going over for the hundredth time all that was said in the interview, warning Sylvia of a danger.

He was first of all done the whole affair by no means and scoff at her fears as the mere wild jealousy—the mean woman way of suspecting and judging a girl.

If he loved Mary Eunice and wanted to marry her, she would be no right to say a word. And if he loved her and wanted to marry her, a e would be a fool to take the said Sylvia's advice. A man—although women would like and often try to deprive him of the privilege—has the right to pick his own mate. And after all, he knows best what he wants though his friends be sure that they know what is best for him.

But if he didn't love Mary Eunice, someone should adroitly save him from this compromising — even shameful position.

Late Thursday afternoon a very nervous and high-strung Jerry casually dropped into the office of Saxon Rhodes.

She took pains that she was looking her most alluring. And she conjured all her resources; ordered her wit and impudence; her gaiety and audacity to be ready to do their utmost.

A lone draughtsman was sitting before his board, rather sadly, big blue orbs.

"Mr. Rhodes is not in town," he answered, pulling the sleeves down over a hairy arm and preparing to leave.

"Is he in Springfield?"

For the first time the man looked up. "Oh, aren't you Miss King? Mr. Rhodes left a message for you. I was to mail it tonight. He's gone to St. Louis. He'll be gone a month. You might as well take the letter."

"A month!"

"Yes—he's gone on business"

Jerry walked down the corridor to the stairs. She remembered the day she stood here watching Ora Pringle leave Saxon's door.

Half way down the stairs she opened his letter. There were the names of several people whom he thought she should see. He had spoken of her and felt certain she could make these jobs.

He was gone to Methuret to look over the site of the university.

"I'm going into this, Jerry, with everything I've got! I'm chancing my life on it, and I've got to win. I think I will."

Jerry folded the letter quietly. Mary had won.

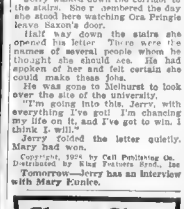
Corns and Callouses

Lift Off—No Pain

Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn and instantly the pain stops. Then shortly you lift the corn right off. "Freezone" ends every kind of corn, hard and soft, and the foot calluses, too. A bottle costs only a few cents at your druggist. Why suffer?



The Love-Light in Her Eyes

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

WHEN Love looks into lovely eyes, back looks Love again. The face that looks into the mirror is the face that looks out again. The Indian in the forest hanging his dark braids over a snow water pool sees a dark face with braided hair looking back. He does not see golden hair and fairy coloring. The child that bends over the water-mirror of the lake sees its own child face, sees the same innocent, rounded, baby face that belongs to himself. He does not see the wise, half troubled, worn face of an old man. The gray face of a girl who bends to study herself in a [illegible] sees a gay, bright face looking back. The face of a [illegible] woman, not the face of the weary, dark and sinful face of a troubled, bitter woman of the world.

What looks into the eyes looks back. Sometimes innocent, happy eyes won you to look love into them, and back it comes to yourself again endlessly. Look hate at the world, and the world's eyes darken for you and glower back again. Look sunshine at it, and its million eyes brighten and twinkle back.

Grief of girland-woman-kind are won to love you by the sweetness of the love that you have given them. Sweetnesses grew by tasting the sweets that were offered, like a little girl tasting the ardently offered candy of a little boy. Young William looked Love into the eyes of Jessica. And [illegible] eyes looked Love into Captain [illegible] or pull at its blanket; especially by removing its support. It catches its breath, clutches at anything within reach, closes its eyes, cries, voids waste. Memories of life in the trees? Why not; sudden noises and movements and withdrawal of support were real dangers then. The infant could not flee, but it could be scared: later it runs and hides when it is afraid.

A rat learns to thread a maze for food; it must pass a trap which always terrifies it. Remove the trap; it jumps as though the trap were present. A dog chases a cat up a tree four times a day. Every time the dog appears I appear. By and by the cat takes to the tree without the dog—my face is enough to make it climb a tree.

A small dog was tossed into the carriage of a 18-days old child. The sudden and unexpected move terrified it. A year later it showed the same kind of terror at home while alone. A door was slammed and at the same time a cat was shown to a child; thereafter it was afraid of the cat.

THE child is afraid of a sudden and loud noise. It hears the thunder, sees the lightning; it learns to be afraid of the lightning. If the flash is blinding, it is afraid of the room. If there is some particular person in the room every time the lightning flashes, the child learns to be afraid of that person, fighting or no lightning.

With a nursery loaded with whatnot in the parlor, and a dresser covered with hand painted junk in the spare bedroom, and both parlor and bedroom in perpetual gloom, means must be found to keep little Willie out. A short cut is found in the fact that Willie can be scared. And Willie is scared. By the time he is three, or sooner, he is as big a coward as his mother was when she was three. He is afraid of the dark, jumps every time a door is slammed, squeals at the sight of a mouse, and if a bat flies into the room the whole household is in panic. And everybody has bad dreams. And little Willie comes out of his nightmare in a cold sweat with a scream, some ghost story has done its work.

We move about in a lighted room with the aid of our eyes. In a dark room we are not distracted by what we see and consequently are more alert to what we feel and hear. We keep meeting with the unexpected, sometims the sudden—crash of a falling chair, bark of a dog, bump on the forehead. And by the time our fear of the dark has become further conditioned by ghosts and bogeys, we are more than afraid of a dark graveyard. And if mother is afraid of strangers and shows it, we are afraid also, because our habit of expectancy of her behavior is dislocated.

So with race. The baby cannot take years to GROW, and be killed in an INSTANT.

There is no birth control in Love.

"You Said It, Marceline"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

LOVE can be born in a DAY. It can also be KILLED over-night!

Was there ever in the world a thing so STRONG, and yet so FRAGILE, so fragrant yet so FEARFUL, so treacherous and dangerous, yet so compassionately tender and SWEET?

Who can know, who is not ALREADY in love, whether before a new day ends that from a SPARK caught from another eye, from the PRESSURE of some hand, or from some softly spoken PHRASE, love may not be, on an instant, consumed in HEART? For it is one of the thrilling MYSTERIES of life. One never knows WHEN or where one will meet one's mate. And strangely enough, one rarely RECOGNIZES him on sight.

It seems a man may spend YEARS trying to fan a little FLAME in a girl's heart. In the same way she may ultimately CONSENT to set on his hearth and be a permanent fixture. Failing to keep him warm in the rose of his days. Yet even after years of DEVOTION he may [illegible] Then along will come ANOTHER man, and in the flash of an eye, arouse her INTELLIGENT sufficiency to make her want to know him for BETTER or worse.

The Pink of Perfection seems to be represented by the pink afternoon costumes being worn at fashionable southern resorts. These monotone chiffons, in various shades of pink or peach, cast a glow over the prospective summer styles and invariably follow the example thus set them.

The Tug of War necessary to keep the short skirt from riding up above the knees, when the wearer is seated, will soon be needless. The latest daytime skirts are being made one or two inches longer, so that the awkward tugging, whenever one sits down, may cease.

Mothers:

Don't have those worries that almost any baby's mother can easily avoid having! Castoria, an old-fashioned but time-honored preparation soon ends those cross or fretful spells. Simple, safe, but works like magic. The helpful influence of Castoria makes itself felt throughout baby's tiny system. It helps make pale babies rosy-cheeked, and seems to give strength and life to frail, sickly babies. It regulates baby's little bowels—relieves colic, constipation, diarrhea—gives him good appetite and digestion. And how it relieves congestion when a baby catches cold! Never give baby paregoric or any other opiate. A few drops of Castoria are just as soothing, and no harm is done. Even castor oil can not compete with Castoria; and Castoria is vastly better for a baby's system. Castoria is purely vegetable, harmless, pleasant-tasting. You can use it as often as baby is "upset" or fretful. Only one thing to be careful about—see that you get the genuine—the bottle which bears Fletcher's name. It isn't expensive. Doctors have recommended Fletcher's Castoria for over fifty years and millions of mothers swear by it. With each bottle you get "Care and Feeding of Babies," the book any mother or prospective mother will find worth its weight in gold.

THE DROP OUT BRIGADE

Eager to start the race,
Anxious to set the pace,
Willing all roads to face,
Stood Pyle's three hundred.
Then as the gun did bark
Each runner left his mark
While the crowd thundered.

Up hill and down the dale,
Over the concrete trail,
Gills getting rather pale,
Onward they blundered,
But when two days are done
There at the set of sun
Only two hundred!

Over the pass they file,
Mile after weary mile,
While "Cash and Carry" Pyle
Wondered and wondered,
Since they were dropping fast,
What he would do at last
For his two hundred.

Corns with enormous root,
Bunions on every foot,
Men here do combat put,
From the race sundered.
Till into Barstow came
Limping and sore and lame,
Scarce a full hundred.

Thus on from day to day,
Over the weary way,
May we make bold to say
Someone has blundered,
If at the final call
Not one is left at all
That brave three hundred?

Asked by hecklers to state specifically how money could be saved the tax payers, Frisby advocated abolition of the Army and Navy, rural free delivery, weather bureau and the postoffice department.

Furthermore, he pointed out cases of waste in the veterans' aid bureau, and said that $7342.27 could be saved annually by using thumb tacks instead of expensive elastic garters, to hold up socks on wooden legs.

FINE FOR CHILDREN!

Give them a good start in life, with happy smiles and healthy little bodies. Children need a mild corrective occasionally to regulate stomach and bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a safe vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They tone up and regulate the eliminative tract. Not a nasty cathartic or a habit-forming medicine, but a safe, pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color, Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome those irritable spells that many children are subject to, keep their bodies in active, healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c.

The writers seem to have looked into your innermost heart and taken out facts you wished most to conceal.

Although you are incensed, you still read what such writers have to say.

Why?

Because you wonder at their ability, you are anxious to learn their deductions, you want to find out how much they know about you.

If you are not what you should be, it's a good thing that someone is able to make you feel that you should try to improve.

What is there about you that you want to keep others from knowing?

You realize what it is.

Then for your own peace of mind try to rid yourself of it.

"MIRACLE WORKERS"

By LUCY LOWELL

DO NOT hold with the current belief that the day of miracles is past. It is not; mighty and seemingly impossible achievements are realized, always and everywhere.

You do not hear of them, to be sure, for most of them are unspectacular. Just things that go on in the course of every-day lives, sometimes almost unnoted by the very ones who have most cause to wonder at them.

For the miracle-worker is not a person, but a trait, a characteristic of human nature, easy to develop, but too often ignored.

Its name is Persistence.

Keeping at it in spite of weariness, discouragement, the feeling that effort is leading nowhere.

You hear the story of the stonecutter who was hacking a piece of granite from the living rock. Hacking, hacking—the pick tearing a little white line in the rock, but apparently no more than scratching the surface.

But, after many days, the white line had become a crevice, and later a cleft. And eventually it had gone all the way through to the other side and the slab of granite was separated from the foundation stone.

"Which blow was it that cut the rock out?" he was asked.

"No one blow," the man answered. "Every single time the pick came down helped. It was not any special blow, it was all of them together."

So with effort: not any one try accomplishes the purpose, but every one together, directed by persistence achieves the miracle.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT, save Summer fiction, oh my Daughter, is lighter than Spring love?

Go to. A Spring romance resembleth a pot of hyacinths. For it is the sweetest and the tenderest thing in all the world—and likewise the frailest and the soonest to die.

Yet, I charge thee say not, "It is done! It is done! I am through with love, forever!"

For, behold, there cometh always ANOTHER April—and another love!

Verily, there is a worse thing than the brevity of Spring love; and that is a Summer cold and a love that hangeth on, after the glamor hath departed and the illusions are dead.

Yet, there is naught that man taketh so much for granted as the gift of a woman's love. But when she seeketh to take back the gift, he cannot BELIEVE it! For his mind is as a non-refillable bottle.

The Perfect Lover is like unto the dynosaurus. Many volumes have been written concerning him; but WHO hath ever met one in the life? Say not of the philanderer, "He may have deceived and dalled with others; but with ME, it will be different"! For, in his loves as in his daily habits, a man runneth true to form.

Bachelors flee when woman pursueth; but married men are bold as lions. For what have they to fear? Yet, a second mortgage on a man's affections is worthless, when the holder of the marriage certificate puttoth in her claim.

The chain smoker lighteth one cigarette from the dying end of another and the "chain-lover" lighteth one flame from the dying embers of another. - But the Fool who maketh love to all women is as the nut who would light the whole pack of cigarettes with one match.

If petting parties and cheap flirtations entice thee, my Daughter, consent thou not. For life is too brief to admit anything within that is neither beautiful nor useful. And a casual lover is a deadly thing.

The lilac scenteth the world and delighteth the spirit. Likewise doth a Spring romance. And wherefore shall a damsel forswear either, because it will not last forever?

Verily, there is a sadder thing than a woman who hath lost a lover. There is she who hath never had a lover—in the Springtime!

JUNGLE FILM SHOWN AT BOSTON

"The Gateway of the Moon," at the Keith-Albee Boston, discloses Dolores De Rio in a melodrama of the South American jungle. The playbill describes it as a drama of "primitive passions." To the hardened movie goer this is a warning that it is but another one of those things. But to those who are more interested in Miss Del Rio (and they are legion) than in the progress of the silent drama, the picture may be as "primitive" as it likes. The star is seen as a half caste damsel of darkest Brazilia, where a railroad is being built. Of course, there is a handsome young Englishman connected with the project, and of course the "exotic beauty" will fall head over heels in love with him.

Dolores Del Rio

It is further essential to good melodrama and primitive passions that there will also be a hateful brute of some sort to thicken up the plot here, and Mr. Del Rio solves on Anders Randolph to oblige with a portrait of this amiable creature.

Randolph, in the film, is boss of the construction and has a Simon Legree with the Indians as his neighborhood. Having gone so far out of his way to be mean to the dusky inhabitants, you just know they will sooner or later turn against him and drive him out—thus leaving the way free and clear for the young lovers.

Walter Pidgeon is the leading man; Leslie Fenton has a brief part, and Ted McNamara's comedy intermittently illuminates the story's more sombre shades.

The direction, John Griffith Wray's, is uniformly excellent.

AN ANCIENT TRYST

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM

Marion Davies and Conrad Nagel meet in the garden and find it a simple matter to pick up the threads of a romance that is ten years old. "Quality Street" starting today at Loew's Orpheum.

SALLY O'NEIL IN FILM AT OLYMPIA

"Mad Hour" at the Washington Street Olympia is the kind of film that takes you through four or five reels of assorted crimes and misdemeanors in order to arrive at a strictly moral conclusion. It is an Ellinor Glyn story and it is a little lesson for today seems to be a sermon against marrying when drunk.

Although to anyone at all interested in morality this seems like a useless admonition. The direction is Allen Dwan's. The cast includes Sally O'Neil, Alice White, Lowell Sherman, Larry Kent, Mae Busch, Edythe Chapman, Norman Trevor and Tully Marshall.

Sally O'Neil

Well, Sally O'Neil, as a young gold-digger, marries a gilded youth at a "gin party." Whereupon the reckless youth is treated to a fine discovering by the boy's parents. Fincing a home with jewel thieves, the young bride shields her husband when the "real" spoon cry claiming the guilt herself.

It seems that the unfortunate girl's baby is born, but the boy's parents take the child away from her on the ground that she is not fit to rear it. At the end of her sentence the wayward wife finds true love, her marriage has been annulled, the boy is marrying another and the baby is not attainable.

It is not surprising then that such a tale of tough luck should be followed by suicide. The girl destroys herself. It is quite the smart thing you know in these days of the pessimistic drama.

ALMA RUBENS IN TWO FILMS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, March 26—The friends of Alma Rubens are agreed on one thing. Her trip abroad did wonders for her. She came back to Hollywood full of vim, vigor and a grand new figure. Everybody that's anybody says it gives any woman confidence in herself. It gave Alma enough courage to refuse to sign for any picture who found the story she wanted.

It was Sam Sax of Gotham Pictures who persuaded her to make two pictures for his company. The first of these is "The River Woman" by Harold Shumate. This is a story that sold the contract. The second story bought to promise will be as colorful and interesting.

I know any number of people who will be interested to see Alma Rubens back in pictures. I am one of them. Some of the earlier pictures she made for the Gotham motion company linger in my mind as one reason I can so express myself.

SUCH old time favorites as Lila Lee and Bryant Washburn and Armand Kalis all command interest. The public may be fickle, but still they like to feel that the actors who at one time held their attention have not passed out of the picture forever. That is why it will be interesting news for most people to hear that Lila Lee, Bryant Washburn and Armand Kalis are to have the important roles in "A Little Bit of Heaven," about to be filmed by Burton King.

I suppose it's a "quickie," but everyone is making quickies more or less, even the big companies. Mesa days, Monte de Cordova is the director.

ANY time anyone mentions "The Twelve Pound Look" everyone begins thinking of Ethel Barrymore. The difficulty is to think of that little playlet without the throaty Ethel as the heroine. Yet there isn't a chance she will play it in the movies for Tiffany-Stahl.

They have purchased it for one of three girls, Raisz: Ruth Miller, Claire Windsor or Sally O'Neil, any of whom hold contracts to make several pictures for John Stahl.

"The Twelve Pound Look" isn't all, by any means. "The Million-Dollar Doll," by A. M. Willoughby, "The Luck of Geraldine Laird," by Kathleen Norris, and an original story, "The Floating College," by Stewart Anthony comprise the list of plays waiting for Fairy and Claire and Sally.

SLAVIC MUSIC IS HEARD AT JORDAN HALL

By MOSES SMITH

For the second time this year the People's Symphony Orchestra played an all-Slavic program at Jordan Hall. This time only the intrusion of Chopin's F minor piano concerto prevented the application of the label "all-Russian."

The soloist in the concerto was Miss Nata Present, a young lady possessing good if not brilliant technique, a pretty touch and rhythmic sense. Her performance was characterized by grace and poetic feeling, but occasional hesitancy might have been due to the conductor, the pianist, or to insufficient rehearsals.

Inadequate rehearsing must certainly have been the explanation of the uneven performance of Tschaikowsky's B minor symphony. We say this without attempt at disparagement for it is well known that economic conditions make it impossible for the men to devote as much time to preparation of programs as they should like. It is a crying shame that an organization of public-spirited musicians, easier to perform musical classics as they should be played, is thus handicapped. Let us hope that Boston does not wake up too late.

Mary Ivon-Franco's popular "Caucasian Sketches"—or at any rate, three of them opened the program. A less familiar number was Borodin's "At the Convent," a piano piece arranged for the orchestra by Josef Marr. The new dress was attractively made, and the piece itself is well adapted to orchestral treatment in spite of its unpretentiousness.

The audience was of fair size. It was especially appreciative of the soloist, giving her prolonged applause following the performance of the concerto.

SOPRANO IS HEARD AT JORDAN HALL

Lucia Chagnon, soprano, made her first appearance in Boston at Jordan Hall in an interesting concert, assisted by a capable accompanist appreciatively.

Three Italian songs offered an excellent opening, and were sung intelligently and musically. A mixed group from Faure, Rubinstein, Bemberg, Grechaninow, and Chopin was followed by two Beethoven songs and three of Schumann. Numbers in English completed the program.

The gift for song characterization and judicious emotional display in one of Miss Chagnon's chief virtues. If her tones above the middle register were as pleasing and well controlled as the lower ones her interpretations would be of excellent quality.

Quadruplets Die

Quadruplets were born to Mrs. Frederick W. Dimmock, of 21 Antrim st., Cambridge, but despite the efforts of the attending physician, Dr. Thomas H. Heston, they lived but a short time. Mrs. Dimmock is resting comfortably.

'CHICAGO AFTER MIDNIGHT' AT SCOLLAY

The underworld still continues to provide fascination in the silent drama. Another tale of terror touching on wild life along the shore of Lake Michigan a "Chicago after Midnight," featured on the new Scollay Square Olympia program, with Ralph Ince, Helen Ince and Eddy, Jolo Mendez and Bob Sedley in the principal roles.

Ince impersonates an underworld magnate who goes to jail with the help of a rival gangster. Fifteen years later he starts back into the old game and finds the gang in command. Gaining on the rival's night club show. The rival is duly put out of the way. The youth scorned of the story that is the leader of the night club band, who is in love with the dancer (Helen Ince), becomes the hero of this he confesses the murders and battles the police until killed.

'Padlock' Law a Good One

The Few Poor Saloons Which Remain Are Miserably Insanitary and Quite Unnecessary

It may be taken for granted that the New Bedford men who contemplate a Statewide referendum on the Padlock law, recently passed by the Legislature and approved by the Governor, are anti-Prohibitionists, or, as they are called, "wets."

It seems to us they are poorly advised.

The well-meaning men and women who were aligned behind the Padlock bill believed it to be necessary in their warfare against roadhouses and night clubs; and perhaps it is. They regard these resorts as menaces to youth; and perhaps they are. SOME of them are, beyond question.

Our own hope is that the law will close the last of Boston's saloons, the miserable ten or a dozen which hang on mysteriously behind plate glass windows which have not known soap and water in nine years.

How these places subsist would be a puzzle if you did not know the profits derived from alcohol UNDER PROHIBITION.

Property owners are given fair warning that under the new law these places may be padlocked for an entire year—not used for ANY purpose.

The more we see of the working of prohibition the more we are convinced that under the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law the saloon is in truth unnecessary.

The rumrunner, the moonshiner and the bootlegger have MADE it unnecessary. In the sinful days of old the customer went to the saloon; now, the saloon is brought to the customer. The big building without its own exclusive bootlegger is the exception. Service!

"But the stuff he sells," you say. "Horrible!"

Of our own experience we know nothing about that, but we have before us the recent report of Commissioner Bigelow, of the State Department of Public Health, to the effect that most of the deaths from alcoholism in recent years have been due not to poisoned liquor but to the excessive use of GOOD liquor.

"Why the increase in the death rate since 1920? Perhaps in a certain group of the population, at least, the drinking habits have materially altered. With the illegality and uncertainty of the supply there has been a tendency to 'drink it while you've got it,' so that a given quantity may more frequently be consumed in a shorter period of time, thus increasing the acute intoxication and deaths."

"In the vast majority of cases," Dr. Bigelow adds, "alcohol deaths in Massachusetts are apparently due to excessive use of 'good pure alcohol.'"

In other words, the thirsty must observe moderation, as much a virtue today as it was before the fanatics and their hired men made it a "felony to drink small beer."

China Is Unhappy

Reasons Are Many

SETTING HIM FREE? MAYBE

These Chinese posters, two of thousands displayed by warring factions in distressed China, tell the same story. The Chinese at the bottom of the 400,000,000 nation are miserably poor, unhappy, thoroughly dissatisfied. And each of the leaders in the revolution, a mixture of Bolshevism, brigandage and well meaning patriotism, tells the same story.

Each says, "We are working to free the under dog. Work with us and China will be happy."

The poster above, put up to enlighten the people by Chinese revolutionary forces, shows the Chinese worker chained to the post. The revolutionary soldier in European uniform cuts his chains and sets him free—MAYBE

The other picture, one of general protest, shows China's desire to get rid of the Europeans that exploit Chinese resources, set up their own courts on Chinese soil, and send their gunboats, cannon and shells when the Chinese object.

The second picture, with words that mean "China bears the burden of the world," shows a Chinese workman carrying on his back a collection of little men representing Britain at the top, France next, then Uncle Sam with the Stars and Stripes, etc.

Bolshevist agents from Russia tell the Chinese they need Communism and Bolshevism. Those two things will make them happy. Chinese listen for a while, then remember more ancient teachings, and proceed to kill a few Bolshevists.

Revolutionary leaders from the South fight against lead-

PRICE OF GREATNESS IS HEAVY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE greatest man that ever lived in this world was nailed to the cross and the passersby wagged their heads at him and reviled him.

Socrates was poisoned like a rat in a hole. Julius Caesar was stabbed to death.

Napoleon ended his days in lonely exile after receiving the homage of kings.

You may want to be great. You may want to be good and grand and sublime.

But if you think you are going to have an easy time being great you are mistaken. The penalty for greatness, at least while you live, is not ease and flattery, but persecution and that of the most annoying kind.

There is something in almost everybody that induces him to stick pins in a great man, to hurt him in some way.

I know one man who is great in character, kind, and self-poised in all his actions. His wife takes delight in nagging him. His children abuse his patience and almost everybody seems to have pleasure taking a knock at him.

Another man of national reputation whom I know was hired by a lecture bureau to deliver a lecture. He delivered it as agreed and paid his own expenses. The bureau collected the fee, but because they said the lecture was not satisfactory they did not turn over the money to him. He consulted a lawyer and the lawyer said it was better to suffer the loss than to enter into a long and expensive lawsuit.

So a great man cannot kick any yapping dogs that bite his calves. He must be content to let the flies blow him and not strike them. He must let everybody cheat him and never strike back.

Newspaper reporters are constantly watching to publish some story about him which will please the public because it defames his character.

If you are going to have a good time and get all the sugar plums out of this existence you should be selfish and obscure.

Virtue is literally its own reward and unless you appreciate the inner satisfaction of knowing that you are a great soul you had better not try it.

Remember that it is the tallest oaks that are broken by the storm. The winds pass harmlessly over the lowly bush.

But perhaps you are of that temper of soul that prefers to be great no matter whether you are appreciated or not. If so, more power to your arm!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE are two great American documents.

They were not written by historians, diplomats, sociologists or other learned theorists. They were written by two American fathers—common men in common jobs.

There are strange notions and schemes abroad these days. One of them was recently published in this column. The letter of a woman who thought our babies would be "better born" if their mothers could dispense with husbands and housework during the prenatal period. Here are the answers of two citizens. Schemes may come and schemes may go, but as long as loyalty and love like this persist AMERICA IS SAFE.

Dear Elsie Robinson—

My wife and I have just been talking over that letter you printed from a woman who would like to dispense with husbands before the babies are born, and we would like to tell you what we think of it. I am a railroad man. My wife is 28 years old while I am nearly 32. We have three children—aged six years, three years and 11 months. So we know all about fatherhood and motherhood and what it means. And my wife says that of all time to be away from her daddy (yes, that's me) and the other kiddies, this prenatal period would be her last choice.

Maybe that's because I've always tried to do my bit when she needed me. When my last two kiddies were born I was right where a husband should be—BY HER SIDE. All I could do was to hold her hand, but that seemed to help, so I stuck. IN OTHER WORDS, WE TRY TO DO EVERYTHING TOGETHER, AND IF THAT IS NOT WHAT MAKES LIFE WORTH WHILE, I'M MISTAKEN FOR, THEN WHY GET MARRIED AT ALL?

If a man and woman truly love each other, it is beyond me to understand why they should want to be apart at such a vital time in their lives—the entrance of children.

In closing, let me say that my wife would not go to a hospital for the birth of our two youngest children for she didn't want to be away from the kiddies and myself for even that long. And as for a day nursery—well let me say that if you take kittens or puppies away from their mothers, the mother cat or dog will go and bring them back home, even if it's only to a poor box, just to have them near her. And we are supposed to be above animals!

Dear Miss Robinson—

A lady wrote you that she envied Mrs. Burnham and thought all mothers should be unhampered by their husbands and homes before childbirth in order to have "better born" children. This country was founded by our pioneer fathers and mothers, sturdy, honest, industrious, brave, plain men and women—God bless them. And you know what a heritage they have left us. If ever a people were "better born" Americans are. But did our pioneer mothers get separate apartments during the prenatal period? Did they sit around reading uplifting books, dabble with art, go to concerts, frequent beauty parlors? Did they send their husbands off for "vacations" and put their babies in day nurseries? Applesauce! I'll say they did not.

The backbone of this country is made of laborers, skilled and unskilled clerks, mechanics, plain, hard working people—who were born as their fathers before them were born and who will carry on this country if they are given a chance. But what is the flaunted in their faces? The standards of a lot of foppish, snobbish, rich idlers who won't take any responsibility seriously and who try to justify their silliness and selfishness by a lot of high sounding theories. Those people aren't fit to be fathers or mothers They aren't fit to inherit this glorious country which their fathers and mothers made possible by their pain and hard work and sacrifice.

I hope you do not get the impression from all this that I am an old fanatic, Miss Robinson. I am an American working man, not yet 30. I am married, have a lovely wife and baby and we have a good time together.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 26—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and talked to Francis Albertanti and we discussed old days when I read copy on the Evening Mail, the most depressing of my newspaper experiences. Nor can I pass the site where the building stood without a shudder.

So to a restaurant and few there, yet the waitresses were standing and holding their trays and one told me that was a strict rule, which struck me as silly. And I determined to write a letter to the management, which was equally silly.

In the evening to a musical play of no importance, but sat behind the trap drummer, and his antics amused me more than the performance, and we engaged in talk and he told of coming from a place called Nip's Neck. Then to eat spaghetti and so to bed.

A NEW YORKER who invites many out-of-towners to his various week-end parties always adds this rare bit of thoughtfulness to his invitations: "Bring your shirt studs."

SHE stepped from a limousine arrayed in evening splendor. Then suddenly her expression was one of amazement. She seemed to shrink as a slowly deflating balloon bobbing across the sidewalk like an ancient flat-footed waiter. Both heels of her evening slippers had crumpled up.

MUSIC publishers say more than 10,000 persons in New York work at obscure jobs while trying to write a popular song, an operetta or music for a musical comedy. Next to writing, composing music attracts the most followers, yet it is perhaps the most difficult of all fields in which to achieve success. During the last year only two newcomers have won anything like conspicuous success.

THERE are bootleggers who have reduced chances of arrest to a minimum. They are known as "contacts" and merely take orders and relay them to supply stations with which they are in no wise connected, save as numbers. That is their sole part in the transaction. They are paid 30 per cent of the sale price, always in cash, by the head man.

A HIGH speed New Yorker is interesting and a bit amusing. I dropped in on one in his hotel apartment before he started for his office. The manservant had just left. A barber was shaving him. Two stenographers were taking dictation while a harried secretary was trying to get Chicago on the telephone. A valet was rubbing off his shoes and two callers waited in the ante-room for an audience. I was there about five minutes and went away feeling as important as a sick gnat at an elephant round-up.

MY TROUBLE has been that if anybody drops in just to say "Hello" they can remain as long as they like and even tell stories with long beards, without my showing the acute annoyance I feel. But the way big men can waltz you out of office and make you like it is simply superb.

THE trained secretary is a big help to important men in giving the visitor a polite bum's rush. He can pounce in, suggesting it is time for this conference and that engagement and do almost anything but put on your hat. He has the advantage, too, of not caring whether you like it or not.

China Is Unhappy

CHINA BEARS THE BURDEN

ers from the North. All protest that they mean to help the under dog. All spend much time killing the under dog, destroying his crops, ruining his houses.

The things that Chinese workmen ask for are freedom of speech, freedom to discuss grievances, abolition of "unequal treaties" which subordinate China's government to European governments, etc.

We ought to sympathize with poor China, even if we do not see much prospect of immediate betterment.

Only 151 years ago the United States also was rebelling against taxation and rule from Europe, demanding the right to govern itself.

We got it and are using it moderately well, the mass of our people content to enjoy considerable prosperity under intelligent "best minds."

Let's hope that poor China will get what she seeks, and will ultimately do as well as we do—the Asiatics keeping Asia to themselves and Americans keeping America for themselves.
